SNYDER ACT U. S. RAIDS UPHELD

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—The Supreme Court today inferentially ruled that federal prohibition administrators can prosecute liquor law violators in the Pennsylvania state courts under the Snyder act and can obtain warrants to search private dwellings without evidence of sale.

The court declined to review the conviction of Marco Compolo, of Butler County, Pa., who was prosecuted by a federal agent in the state court, convicted, ordered imprisoned nine months and fined $500.

The Supreme Court today also, in effect, sustained the validity of the Jones "5 and 10" law when it denied petitions for review of the constitutionality of the drastic measure under which first offenders can be sentenced to five years in prison and fined $10,000.

The court acted on two petitions by Hugh McElvogue and William J. Brown, both of whom were sentenced to prison in Federal Court at St. Joseph, Mo.

They contended that the law violated both Article One and the Sixth amendment of the Constitution, setting out nine specific reasons in their attack on its validity.

The attack was directed chiefly to the proviso of Congress which informed federal judges that the law was intended to hit the "big fellows" and that its drastic maximum penalties should not be enforced against casual violators.

Waters Appointed Leader Of Pinchot's Fight In Philadelphia

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 13.—(INS.)—Charles A. Waters, of Germantown, state auditor general, today accepted the leadership of the Republican state committee in Philadelphia.

Gen. Edward Martin, chairman of the Republican state committee, had asked Waters to assume charge of the local G. O. P. campaign after Recorder of Reeds James M. Hazlett, the city Republican chairman, had followed Councilman Charles B. Hall and other leaders in the bolt from former Gov. Gifford Pinchot, Republican nominee, to support John M. Hemphill, Liberal-Democratic candidate for governor.

Pinchot Saturday demanded Hazlett resign, declaring that otherwise he would appeal to Gen. Martin to depose him.

ASSAILS BOLTERS

In accepting the post, Waters declared:

"I did not start this fight, nor did I seek the assignment which has been given me, but if I refused to see the fight through, I, in conscience, could only consider myself in the same category as these political cowards in Philadelphia who desert the party under the fire of selfish interest directed at the ticket."

He flayed the bolting leaders and asserted he could see no rea-

The official bulletin received in the city from the headquarters of the Holy Ghost Fathers in Paris did not state to what position Father Hehir would be changed.

The new president, it was learned, is to be the Very Rev. J. J. Callahan, C. S. Sp., L. L. D., who comes here from the Holy Ghost Apostolic College at Cornwells, Pa. He has been superior of the college for 15 years. The British Woman in Air To Beat Ingalls' Record

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 13.—(INS.)—Mrs. Keith Miller, British aviatrix, landed at Mars Hill Airport here at 12:02 o'clock this afternoon on her flight from New York to the Pacific Coast.

Mrs. Miller took off from Curtiss Field, New York, at 6:30 a. m. today for a flight to Los Angeles in an effort to lower the women's trans-continental record established recently by Miss Laura Ingalls.

AMARILLO, Tex., Oct. 13.—(AP.)—Still maintaining they were not engaged in a race, Robert Buck, 16, of Elizabeth, N. J., and Miss Laura Ingalls, of St. Louis, seeking to establish west-to-east transcontinental flight records, planned to take off from English Field today for Wichita, Kan., as soon as there was some improvement in the weather which prevented their starting at dawn.

Yesterday Buck was forced to land here for repairs. Miss Ingalls landed because of unfavorable weather.

115,000 PAY EUCHARISTIC TRIBUTE

Forbes Field became a palace of faith last night, a palace draped in a veil of glittering gold. Its altar throne, with snow white pillars, held in its heart a gold monstrance containing the Blessed Eucharist.

Before the Eucharist 100,000 prayed, including those in the streets and park about the field. At least 15,000 others were in the Oakland district to view the spectacle from many vantage points.

Pittsburgh saw its first Eucharist Day service, saw 70,000 men in field and stand, pay obeisance, pay public tribute to God whose presence here in the Eucharist was to each a reality. It saw the dark, dull skeleton of the stands and the indistinguishable mass of faces hidden by this glinting veil of gold.

MULTITUDE IN PRAYER

Gentlest of draperies, a kind wind played here and there, blurring, it seemed, the whole world into hammered gold. This faintest of breezes vibrated 70,000 jets of golden flame from as many lighted candles, moving them against the steel dark background of night.

In Forbes Field 70,000 knelt and prayed with bowed heads, others crowded the sidewalks outside, and women and children barred—for it was men's night—worshipped from Flagstaff Hill, a Schenley Park elevation which gave them a microscopic view, but still a view, of this religious spectacle.

The ceremonies embraced all the pageantry of the Roman Catholic Church in its gayest mood, the surging song of a 70,000-voiced choir; brilliant gold and white vestments that caught the rays of powerful lights and the flickering of candles.

The classic altar and its gold-domed covering, gay drapings, its white pillars; its American and Papal flags; its sacred vessels and candelabra of precious metals, these were contrasted with the surrounding sea of faces. Between them the swinging procession of altar boys moved in graceful harmony.

But 70,000 men sang the "Star Spangled Banner," and that

Marries to Help 'Heir,' Fails to Get $12,000, Has Mate Arrested

The story of a young bride who is alleged to have married a man so he could inherit $60,000 from a wealthy aunt and give her $12,000 to wed the man she really loved, was unfolded today by county detectives.

The young woman is Mrs. Ruth Urban, 22, formerly Ruth Locy, of Davis avenue, Homestead Park, the detectives reported. On her complaint, her newly acquired "ghost" husband, Leonard Urban, 25, of 270 South Twentieth street, was being held in the county jail today on suspicion he is suffering from a "marriage complex."

The third person in the triangle, detectives say, is Reed Miller, 28, of 315 North Beatty street, who the police assert, is the fiancee of Mrs. Urban.

According to Detectives Michael McDermott and Michael Stabile, Urban is alleged to have told Miller, his friend, that he would inherit $60,000 from a rich aunt if he was married by October 1.

Miller, Urban and Miss Locy, according to information obtained by the police, agreed that the young woman marry Urban and that Urban would pay Miss Locy $12,000. They then were to obtain a divorce.

The ceremony was performed in Cumberland, Md., September 26, with Miller present, according to the story told the detectives. They returned, but separated.

October 1 came and went, but Urban failed to deliver the promised $12,000. Last night Miss Locy had Urban arrested at her home in the presence of Miller.

Detectives discredit Urban's story that he was to inherit $60,000. They began an investigation to learn if he had been involved with other women. He is said to have told the sleuths he once had been rejected by a young woman who had advertised for a husband.

OFFICER DOZES, TUBE CARS HIT

When a policeman fell asleep in his parked automobile today, according to police records, in the northbound lane of Liberty Tubes four other automobiles and a cross-country bus crashed, unable to pass the obstructing car.

Mrs. Helen Bruce, 19, and her mother, Mrs. Mary Meyer, 50, both of 58 Pointview road, the only ones hurt, were permitted to go home after their injuries were dressed in Mercy Hospital.

Patrolman John Cahill, of Mt. Washington Station, the accused policeman, was being held while Lieut. John Casteel checked reports that he had driven his machine into the tube, parked it, and then had fallen asleep while he was supposed to be walking his beat in West Liberty avenue.

Police reported they were told machines behind Cahill's car crashed into his machine when he stopped it. The two women were hurt when a White Star bus piled into the wrecked machine, police said.

In the excitement all of the motors were left running, but motorcycle officers and engineers at the tubes prevented any rapid collection of carbon monoxide gas by turning the ventilating fans to full speed. The tube was closed for about a half an hour, and traffic was diverted.

Attorney's Illness Delays Hartlep Case

The trial of William Hartlep, supervisor of North Side parks, charged with murder in the death of Joseph Neiberding, 16, of 616 Sherman avenue, whom he is alleged to have struck on the head with a baseball bat, was postponed in Criminal Court today until Wednesday. Illness of Attorney E. G. Coll, representing Hartlep, was given as the cause.

'NUMBERS' SOLD AT SCHOOL

Charged with soliciting the nickels and dimes of school pupils for wagers in the clearing house "numbers" gambling, Edward Devorak, 34, of 1217 Voskamp street, was lodged in North Side police station this morning.

The arrest was made by Lieut. Harry E. Moore following a complaint, he said, that numbers were being sold to the Spring Garden School pupils.

When the lieutenant, in plain clothes, stationed himself at the school this morning, Devorak was there. Moore said the man went into a butcher shop and hid his "number" pad. The evidence was found after a search, Moore said.

SWEETHEART OF DIAMOND SAW MEN ESCAPE

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN.
International News Service.

NEW YORK, Oct. 13.—Miss Marian Roberts, beautiful 20-year-old Broadway show girl, was grilled by police for hours early today in connection with the mysterious and perhaps fatal shooting of Jack (Legs) Diamond, super-gangster and racketeer, and former bodyguard of the slain Arnold Rothstein.

Diamond is in Polyclinic Hospital. He was shot five times and left for dead by two gunmen as he sat in his pajamas in his room in the Hotel Montiello, in West Sixty-fourth street, near Broadway, shortly before noon Sunday.

His condition was better today, said an official bulletin, reporting improvement noted during the night.

In some respects the shooting of Diamond paralleled the shooting of Rothstein, who was "plugged" in room 348 of the Park Central Hotel, less than a mile away, on the night of November 4, 1928.

Miss Roberts, slim, titian-haired girl, whose real name police said they thought was Marion Strasmick, is a Ziegfeld Follies girl and has appeared in numerous musical comedies. She is one of the most beautiful girls New York has ever known, according to Broadway patrons.

SEES GUNMEN LEAVE

She told police she met Diamond recently at a night club and, according to detectives, said "she fell in love with him."

"He was my one and only sweetheart," she said, according to police.

55 Orphans Flee Smoke-Filled School

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 13. — (AP.)—Fifty-five children housed in the downtown Hebrew Orphans' Home were marched down an outside fire escape without confusion early today when smoke from a fire in the basement filled the building.

Under the direction of Miss Anna Ford, 25-year-old superintendent, the children joined hands and marched to the fire escape. The younger children were carried by the older boys. None was injured.

Mrs. Converse, Barn Dance Companion Die in Crash

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—(INS.)—Mrs. Elizabeth Walter Converse, wife of James Vail Converse, New York banker and sportsman, was dead today at Falls Church, Va., a capital suburb, the body being held there pending an inquest.

Mrs. Converse, 27, and David Drage, 26, of Kansas City, Mo., were killed yesterday when a motor car driven by Mrs. Converse, careened off the road.

Drage, an old friend, was the son of Col. Frank B. Drage, an Englishman, who became a resident of Kansas City some years ago.

Mrs. Converse is the daughter of Mrs. Frank Walter, a wealthy widow, of Chevy Chase, Md.

She divorced her first husband, F. Addison Barstow, nephew of W. W. Atterbury, president of the Pennsylvania Railroad, several years ago, and married Converse, after his divorce from Thelma Morgan, sister of Mrs. Reginald G. Vanderbilt, nearly two years ago.

Mrs. Converse's brother, Donald Maxwell Walter, was killed in an automobile accident here in 1927.

Farmers who heard the crash found Mrs. Converse dead some distance away, and Drage unconscious 100 feet from where she lay.

The force of the impact had torn her shoes from her feet.

PLANE READY FOR NEW TEST

Boyd, Connor Confident of Ability to Make Return Journey to U. S. by Air

EXCLUSIVE

By CAPT. J. ERROL BOYD.

The Canadian war flier who, with Lieut. Harry P. Connor, U. S. naval reserve officer, Saturday successfully completed the first nonstop flight between Canada and the United States, in a specially equipped monoplane, the Columbia, landed at Croydon Airport, England, from Harbor Grace, Newfoundland, after an over night stop on the Azore Islands.

(Copyright, 1929, by King Features Syndicate, Inc. Distributed by Universal Service.)

LONDON, Oct. 13.—Lieut. Connor and I are at the moment considering a return flight to the United States with the Columbia by way of the Azores Islands and South America.

Nothing definite has yet been decided, but we are mulling over the proposition. The old monoplane is in fine shape and so are Connor and myself. A night between clean linen sheets has done wonders for both of us. However, I still find it hard to fall asleep after the excitement of the flight, during all of which our ears were filled with the roar of the Columbia's single powerful motor.

GREETING FROM GENERAL

I got a particularly great kick out of a cable from Gen. Langmuir, commanding my old war regiment, the Queen's Own Rifles. It said:

"All ranks join me in extending heartiest congratulations on your successful flight."

After the ordeal I felt as though I would never want to fly over the ocean again, but a little Sabbatical reflection has aroused the old urge. Lieut. Connor, too, is beginning to chafe at the inactivity.

So it is likely that our plans for the homeward trip will bear fruit. I still have a lien on the Columbia from Charles A. Levine, who, with Clarence Chamberlain, was the first to fly it across the Atlantic. He is giving us hearty cooperation.

It is impossible at this time of the year to fly directly to the United States. We took too big a chance on the trip over.

The feed pipe has now been fixed and the Columbia is ready for a trip of any length in any weather, but we are certainly not going to try her again over the direct route across the Atlantic to America, at least this winter.

If you ask what was the most spectacular moment of our flight, I think Harry would agree with me that it was not the perilous landing on the narrow beach at Tresco, but our view of the breaking dawn at a 10,000-feet altitude.

SEE THROUGH CLOUDS

We then saw a phenomenon I doubt any other persons have ever seen. The sky was the strangest blue imaginable. Below us there was a floor of cumulous clouds broken here and there by black holes through which the Atlantic was faintly visible.

To the east, the reddest sun we ever saw with mile-long streaks of sirus clouds rising up like clutching fingers. It was an unreal world such as the average mortal never sees.

Sirus clouds standing up from the cloud floor appeared as reversed water spouts. The red flare of the plane's exhaust surrounded us with a fiery rainbow.

Before the sunrise, our altitude of 10,000 feet under a full moonlight had given us the impression that we were sailing alone in a dead world with the plane's shadow following us over the solid cumulus floor.

The Columbia is the first heavier-than-air aircraft to carry mails from America to London successfully, reaching the destination intact. Previous attempts had failed. We carried 10 pounds of mail bearing the special Newfoundland caribou stamp issued for the occasion.

'Butcher Boy' Gone, His Bond Forfeited

Edward Exler, the "butcher boy" slayer, who nearly 20 years ago was convicted and sentenced to prison for the murder of Lillian Schradle, 12, of Dooker's Hollow, Turtle Creek, today forfeited $1,000 cash bond by failing to appear for trial on a charge of assault and battery with attempt to commit a felony on a 6-year-old girl.

The alleged crime took place nearly two years ago. A process was issued for the apprehension of the accused.

TOO HOT TO HANDLE? — By Quin Hall

PINCHOT BOLT STIRS CAPITAL

By GEORGE R. HOLMES,
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—Pennsylvania's boiling political campaign, in which old-line Republican stalwarts are bolting Gifford Pinchot and enlisting under the Liberal-Democratic banner of John M. Hemphill, is engaging the attention of party leaders in Washington as probably no other single contest in the November elections.

Senator William E. Borah's suggestion of a senatorial investigation to determine whether "great public utilities" are spending money to defeat Pinchot made Washington literally gasp.

So far as is known this is the first time it has ever been seriously suggested that the United States Senate should abrogate to itself powers to investigate a purely state election. For the Senate now to consider probing a gubernatorial contest is a radical advance from all hitherto conceived relationships between the national and state governments.

Borah puts his suggestion on the grounds that the "interests," meaning railroads and utilities, are engaging in politics, are spending money in politics, and that these expenditures, if any, are rightly a matter of federal concern since the federal government exercises control over the railroads and utilities through regulatory bodies which limit the profits and control the rates which the utilities take from the public.

TWO BOYS, MAN HURT BY SHOTS

John Kalinowski, 16, of 3006 Pulaski way, was in West Penn Hospital today, shot in the leg, while Penn avenue police were holding his brother, Stanley, 19, and Stanley Jortz, 17, of 3045 Pulaski way, for questioning, it was reported. They were arrested last night while seeking medical aid for the wounded boy.

They told police they were walking in Herron avenue, near Brereton when they heard a girl scream. Investigating, they found two girls and a man in the rear of a building. The man, they said, drew a revolver and fired.

Regis Hurley, 15, of 2324 Salisbury street, was shot accidentally in a woods near Becks Run road yesterday. The bullet, fired by another boy, first struck a rock, rebounded and entered his ankle.

When the trigger of a .32-caliber rifle he didn't know was loaded was pulled last night in the home of Elgin Bird, 35, of Federal street, Natrona, Bird was wounded in the thigh. Charles Anthony, 35, of Sarver, who was examining the weapon, was at liberty today on his own recognizance.

CANNON'S SON TO FACE CHECK CHARGES

Will Return to Los Angeles, Explain Bank Shortage; Office Fire Investigated

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 13.—(AP.)—While Maj. Richard M. Cannon, son of Bishop James Cannon, Jr., announced at Washington, D. C., last night he expected to return "promptly to Los Angeles to face and refute any charges which may be there," fire department officials here continued investigation of a blaze in his local offices a week ago.

Maj. Cannon, who is sought in Los Angeles and San Bernardino counties on warrants charging issuance of bad checks in connection with promotion of a boys' school, said the charges would be "answered satisfactorily at the proper time and place."

BLAME INCENDIARY

Investigators here said firemen answering a call to Maj. Cannon's residence, and found a pile of paper burning in the center of the office he maintains in his home.

The fire had every appearance they said, of being of incendiary origin. Nothing of value was destroyed as far as the investigators could determine.

Officials of the El Monte school, in connection with which the checks were given, said their records were intact and are being kept in the school office.

HINTS PERSECUTION

The statement issued by Maj. Cannon through his father, bishop of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, follows:

"For the past two years, along with some other members of the family, I have been the target of frequent attacks not because I am R. M. Cannon but because I am one of the sons of Bishop James Cannon, Jr.

"It is quite significant my Los Angeles office was burned and important valuable papers were destroyed on Sunday, October 5, four days after my departure from Los Angeles.

"I expect to return promptly to Los Angeles to face and refute any charges which may be there."

The checks on which the warrants were issued were for $40 at San Bernardino and $1,600 at Los Angeles.

CONTINUE FUND APPEAL WEEK

Officers of the Salvation Army announced today that the home service fund appeal will be continued another week.

In order to give everybody an opportunity to aid in the appeal, the Army is running a coupon in the Sun-Telegraph to be used for contributions.

The coupon appeal is directed principally to those who may have missed the Army's worker when she called, or for those who may have forgotten to contribute. If cash is not available, the coupon also gives the chance to pledge to pay at some future date.

Returns from Red Shield tag day Saturday, coupled with the week-end reports of solicitors, brought the total of the fund to $48,845, campaign headquarters announce. The fund is still far from the half-way mark, as the Salvationists are trying to raise $112,900.

The campaign extension is the first in the local history of the Army.

The home service fund helps maintain the organization's activities in Allegheny County.

Coolidge Says Columbus Feat Opened Modern Era

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., Oct. 13.

To the Editor of the Sun-Telegraph:

Since 1492, October twelfth has properly been Columbus Day. But only of late it has been generally celebrated as a holiday. Such observance rests on a secure foundation. Measured by its effect on all following history, the voyage of Columbus, ending in the discovery of a new hemisphere, was an achievement of the first magnitude. Possibly others preceded him, but he was the first who made known the existence of America to European civilization. He is entitled to rank forever as the greatest of all explorers.

Calvin Coolidge

But the glory of his exploit, great as it was, becomes almost unimportant when compared with its results. It marked the inception of the modern era. The minds of men were opened to new thoughts. The gold and silver of America gave a new trend to the life of Europe. The arts began to flourish. The people began to assert their rights. More colonies brought more trade. A new age appeared, great in captains, admirals, statesmen, poets and philosophers, and finally new nations dedicated to human freedom arose on this side of the Atlantic. These are partly the reasons why Christopher Columbus is entitled to be honored.

With Waters' acceptance, Martin and Mayor Harry A. Mackey turned their attention towards rounding up recalcitrant Republicans and bringing them into line for Pinchot.

AMBLER REGULAR

In the meantime, Charles A. Ambler, of Abington, director of the Brown-Davis campaign in Montgomery County in the recent primary, also fell into line. In a vigorous statement Ambler flayed all the bolters from the Republican ranks, especially Councilman Hall, and announced his intention of supporting Pinchot and the entire Republican ticket.

Chiefs Opposing Pinchot Gollmar Answers Business

Former Judge Frank I. Gollmar, Allegheny County chairman of the Pinchot-for-governor primary campaign, today replied to a statement issued yesterday by A. L. Humphrey, president of the Westinghouse Air Brake Company and chairman of a businessmen's committee advocating the election of John M. Hemphill, Democratic-Liberal nominee for governor.

Gollmar stated:

"Mr. Humphrey's statement makes it clear to the mind of every voter that the issue in this campaign is whether the government of Pennsylvania, particularly the Public Service Commission, shall be controlled by a small body of men who are public utility magnates and manufacturers whose interests are allied with them, or by the people through their duly-elected governor.

Humphrey will be assisted, according to the announcement, by Francis S. Guthrie, treasurer of the committee, and these members of the executive committee: W. S. Arbuthnot, president of Arbuthnot-Stephenson Company, and bank director; R. V. Bingay, president of the Pittsburgh Stove and Range Company; A. E. Braun, bank president and director of the Pittsburgh Railways Company; J. D. Callery, director of the Philadelphia Company, controlling the street railway, gas and electric utilities in Pittsburgh; John F. Casey, contractor for many Pennsylvania Railroad Company projects; A. C. Lehman, president of Blaw-Knox Company; A. W. Robertson, chairman of the board of Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company, director of Pittsburgh Aviation Industries Corporation and bank director; E. T. Weir, chairman of the board of Weirton Steel Company, and president of Redstone Coal and Coke Company.

Anti-Saloon Leader Here Urges Pastors Aid Pinchot

The Rev. Dr. David Cruea, superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League, urged the members of the Pittsburgh Ministerial Union, at a meeting held today in the Smithfield Street church, to support Gifford Pinchot for governor. He told the ministers that there is a real political fight on in Pennsylvania, and that to elect Pinchot a large vote must be polled.

Announcement was made by J. W. Claudy that plans are going forward for organized religious services in the county jail.

The Rev. George A. Long, of the Homewood United Presbyterian Church, stated that the Sabbath Association is planning to hold a dinner gathering of those persons favorable to the present Sunday laws.

BORIS IN ITALY FOR NUPTIALS

SAN ROSSORE, Italy, Oct. 13.—(AP.)—When Bulgaria next sees its bachelor-king, Boris III, he probably will be a bachelor no longer, but a married man, with the Italian princess Giovanna as his bride.

Boris, who arrived here yesterday with a truck load of robins-egg blue luggage, is expected shortly—no one seems to know just how soon—to go through the legal and religious forms of an Italian marriage with the 23-year-old princess.

By religious forms is meant the Roman Catholic ceremony, which the Vatican is expected to sanction in a public pronouncement, although Boris in fact, and by the law of his country is a member of the orthodox church.

FATHER HEHIR LEAVES POST

NEW POST UNKNOWN

Father Hehir is second in authority of the Order of Holy Ghost Fathers in the United States. He ranks immediately below the provincial father. For a long time it was expected that he would be honored with an appointment which would relieve him of the heavy duties he has been carrying out as president of Duquesne University. It is expected that word will be received soon concerning his new position.

The Very Rev. J. J. Callahan was born in Bay City, Mich., in 1882, and studied at the Gregorian University in Rome. He returned to the United States for his ordination and became a professor at the Holy Ghost College at South Norwalk, Conn. Later he became the rector of Notre Dame Church in Chippewa Falls, Wis. Fifteen years ago he was transferred to Cornwells, Pa.

Father Hehir was born in Ireland November 10, 1855, and studied at Blackrock College in Dublin. He also was educated at the Catholic University in Dublin and at the theological school at Chevilly, Paris.

HERE SINCE 1884

After coming to the United States he received the degree of doctor of literature at St. Vincent College, Beatty, Pa. He came to Duquesne University in 1884, serving first as a professor. Later he was named vice president and director of the ecclesiastical students. He was named president of the university August 20, 1899.

Father Hehir is a member of the Diocesan School Board and is an examiner of the diocesan junior clergy. He is a member of the Catholic Educational Association of America and the College and University President's Association of Pennsylvania.

Chicago Policeman Slain in Gun Fight

CHICAGO, Oct. 13.—(INS.)—Shot and killed in a gun battle with three assailants, Policeman William Rumbler today was believed to have been put on the "spot" for his activities against a liquor running syndicate.

Instead of complying with the command to put up his hands last night when the trio of gunmen entered a North Side soft drink parlor, Rumbler drew his revolver and opened fire. The policeman's gun jammed after the fourth shot and he fell to the cafe floor with 11 bullets in his body.

Hardware Man Fined For Making Still

GIRL QUIZZED IN DIAMOND SHOOTING

ing and said she was taking a bath when the shooting occurred.

"I seized a towel or something and ran out just like that to the stairway. Then I crouched and hid until they (the gunmen) ran past me down the stairs."

Police Commissioner Edward P. Mulrooney personally questioned Miss Roberts. He was extremely interested in reports that a New Jersey telephone call was made from the hotel shortly before the shooting. The fact that the gunmen's car carried a New Jersey license caused authorities to regard the call as perhaps significant.

HID IN CLOSET

The girl was apprehended by the homicide squad men late last night in the apartment of Agnes O'Loughlin, at 854 Eighth avenue. Miss O'Loughlin recently sued Rudy Vallee for alleged breach of promise. Detectives found Miss Roberts hiding in a closet. She wailed:

"Oh, why must I go through this? It will ruin me."

WIFE FACES GIRL

While Miss Roberts was being questioned, detectives brought Mrs. Alice Diamond, the gangster's wife, into her presence and it was reported that a stormy scene ensued when Mrs. Diamond confronted the young show girl. Mrs. Diamond was also questioned by the police. She had rushed to New York City from Acra, N. Y., to see her husband immediately she learned he had been shot. She visited him in the hospital.

At Polyclinic Hospital, Diamond informed Mulrooney that he did not recognize the gunmen who shot him and had no idea why they did it.

"He's lying about that, of course," was Mulrooney's comment.

FIVE WOUNDS

Dr. Babcock said the wounds consisted of one on the left side of the abdomen, one in the right thigh, two through the chest and one in the center of the forehead close to the scalp.

The police threw a guard around the wounded gangster in the hospital for fear that more gunmen would be sent to finish the job.

Almost immediately after the shooting, the hotel manager, Ginsberg, disappeared after turning the wounded man in his room over to his assistant, Joseph Goldy. He left word he had a previous engagement in New Jersey. The police wish to question Ginsberg, whom they believe to be a friend of Diamond. Ginsberg was formerly manager of the Hotel Harding, where Diamond for a time maintained his Broadway quarters.

DIAMOND'S STORY

Diamond's story to the police was that he was sitting on the bed in his red silk pajamas, reading, when the door opened and three men entered. (Other information was to the effect that there were only two men.) He, added:

"One of them said, 'Well here we are, let's go.' Then all three blazed away at me. I keeled over on the bed and they fled. I got to my feet and went along the hall as far as the elevator. There I fell, and I don't remember anything until I came to in Ginsberg's room."

Diamond made no mention of Miss Roberts in his narrative.

34 Persons Seized By Chinese Pirates

HONGKONG, Oct. 13.—(AP.)—Chinese pirates posing as passengers today held up the steamer Sunnamhoi on the West River, killed two of the ship guards, seized four guards and 30 passengers, and escaped with $9,000 loot.

Ex-Film Star Confesses Shooting Husband

MARYSVILLE, Cal., Oct. 13.—(AP.)—While L. R. (Red) Shaffer, 31, lay seriously wounded in a hospital here refusing to reveal the identity of the person who shot him, his wife, a former motion picture actress, admitted the shooting, officers said and declared she was sorry her husband would live.

Mrs. Shaffer, formerly Delores Duncan, film actress of a decade ago, told Sheriff C. J. McCoy she shot her husband yesterday to save herself from being choked to death. Her face, bruised and cut, testified to a beating, McCoy said. She was not arrested.

Shaffer drove 31 miles from his Loma Rica ranch to have his wounds dressed. The bullet had split, part of it lodging below the collar bone and in his left shoulder.

McCoy visited Mrs. Shaffer at her ranch home. She told a story of being beaten by her husband. She said he was choking her when she seized the pistol and fired.

Missing Banker Feared Victim of Gangsters

CHICAGO, Oct. 13.—(INS.)—Reports that Charles V. Bob, missing New York banker, had fallen victim to Chicago gangsters bent on extortion spurred the search for the capitalist today.

Bob's cabin monoplane, fueled and ready for a flight last Thursday, was found in a municipal airport hangar Saturday when his New York friends became alarmed at his absence. He was to have flown east Thursday with his pilot, Col. Dean Lamb, but failed to call for his airplane.

Detectives here learned that Bob carried large sums of money and this, it was said, may have been a motive for foul play.

It was learned today that two men, one an aviator, had made an attempt to charter a plane Saturday for a flight to Philadelphia.

Calling Curtiss-Reynolds Airport the man said he had his own pilot and when told that the plane had to be flown by a pilot from the airport, he agreed to engage the extra flier.

The man refused to give his name.

Detectives thought it possible the man might have been Bob as he was last seen with his own pilot, Col. Lamb.

RECORD CROWD ORDERLY

A conservative estimate of more than 100,000 men—exceeding the multitudes attracted to Pittsburgh by the World's Series, gridiron spectacles and the visit of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh—was announced last night as the official Eucharistic Day attendance at Forbes Field by Traffic Inspector Jacob Dorsey.

The record crowd, composed of Catholic men from Allegheny and nine adjoining counties, milled into the Oakland district, and was parried by the largest police cordon ever established here.

WALSH DIRECTS

Although the crowd presented the greatest traffic assignment ever given Pittsburgh police authorities, the situation was handled flawlessly under the personal direction of Police Supt. Peter P. Walsh and nine of his inspectors. Police from every district made up the force called in to regulate the huge assemblage.

"No parking" edicts posted throughout the district made possible a smooth flow of traffic to the field from the foremost vehicle arteries, the Boulevard of the Allies, and Bigelow boulevard.

The grandstand, the aisles and the infield of thte Oakland ball park were filled nearly an hour before the ceremony began, and on the streets outside, a portion of Schenley Park immediately behind right field, other groups, lighted candles in hand, joined in the observance.

THREE IN HOSPITALS

Tens of thousands of automobiles swarmed into makeshift parking lots as the prices for storage soared. The traction company, however, pressed 200 trolleys and all available buses into service and Forbes street and Fifth avenue were lined with police throughout the district to accommodate the outward flow.

Three persons were removed to Mercy Hospital suffering from slight ailments. James Reilly, 17, of 4639 Plumber street, fainted in the crowd, and is being detained at the hospital for observation.

James Calabres, 37, of Glenfield, Pa., was overcome by shock. He was treated at the hospital and released. Paul Donnelly, 23, of 101 Arch street, East Pittsburgh, was treated at the hospital for sprains of the left ankle. He was released from the hospital following treatment.

50 Women Attend Eucharistic Day Services

Although the Holy Name Society is strictly a men's organization, 50 women were signally honored for their devotion and hard work in arranging Eucharistic services last night in Forbes Field.

For a little group of 50 who cared for many of the details of arrangement were taken into the enclosure and, although the remainder of the many thousands were men, attended Benediction and joined in the homage to the Blessed Sacrament.

SPECIAL AUTO FOR EUCHARIST

The Eucharist was carried to Forbes Field from St. Paul's Cathedral last night in a gorgeously appointed sedan, purchased especially for the occasion by Frank Lanahan, a leading Catholic layman of the Pittsburgh diocese.

Mr. Lanahan himself drove the machine, while Superintendent of Police Peter P. Walsh was the personal guard. The tonneau of the car, especially outfitted with white linen coverings, had been converted into a small chapel.

Escorted by a squad of motorcycle officers, the auto proceeded to the gate at the rear of the altar, where it passed through lanes of cassocked altar boys.

The journey to the field was the first ever made with the car since its purchase. After it was serviced for delivery, Mr. Lanahan directed the special interior decoration, and ordered it held in the showroom until it was taken to the Cathedral.

PRELATES ADVANCE

At 7 p. m. the Rev. Leo McCrory, crucifix bearer, led 450 prelates and priests from beneath the stands onto the field. Previously, Bishops Hugh C. Boyle, of Pittsburgh, and Thomas C. O'Reilly, of Scranton, had seated themselves before the altar.

The stands were filled. Police shunted many into the aisles, and held back thousands. The procession of clergymen marched slowly to seats before the altar.

The Rev. James M. Delaney, spiritual director of the Diocesan Union Holy Name Society, which sponsored the event, stood at the microphone. He welcomed the throng, and uttered the opening prayer. He said:

"You have surpassed our most cherished desire. We hope that your prayers and ours pierce the clouds to the Big Throne of the Infinite Master, and that into your hearts may descend strength and a conception of God's greatness."

SERVICE OPENS

Thus began the service.

In Carnegie Music Hall, John S. Bionsick, assistant organist of St. Paul's Cathedral, began to play the national anthem. The assemblage rose. Full-throated, deep-voiced men by the tens of thousands sang. The mighty roll of melody swept beyond the confines of the park.

Directed by Father Carlo Rossini, a male choir of 800 voices sang two hymns, "Almighty God" and "Veni Creator" (The Creator Comes). Amplifiers carried their voices to the farthest seat.

BISHOP'S ADDRESS

Bishop O'Reilly was presented and began his address. He spoke of "Our Eucharistic King." He talked of the gathering 1900 years ago, the Last Supper, when Christ said:

"This is my body and my blood. Do this in commemoration of me."

He spoke of the ancient gathering of 5,000 men, besides women and children, who saw Christ in the miracle of the loaves and fishes, and heard Him say:

"Amen, amen, I say unto you, unless you eat of the flesh of the Son of Man and drink His blood, you shall not have life in you."

On these New Testament quotations, Bishop O'Reilly based his sermon. He said:

"We are assembled here to honor our Eucharistic King. From the night of the Last Supper, to this, the Apostles and their successors, obedient to the command of Jesus Christ, have pronounced these words of divine power over the elements of bread and wine. And every time they do it, Christ becomes present, body and blood, soul and divinity, under the appearance of bread and wine, and the sacrifice of Calvary is renewed, the only difference being that on Calvary He actually died, whereas in the mass His death is shown forth through the separate consecration of bread and wine.

"The altar is the throne of Christ crucified.

"No one needs to tell you what this day means to Pittsburgh. You know what it meant to Bethlehem 1900 years ago to have the Son of God born in a stable. Surely you know what it means to have the Christ of the ages carried through your streets and lifted on high in this great park to bless you and to fill your hearts with love and devotion. It is not merely a ceremony, but a divinely instituted act which reminds you of the great facts in your Catholic life."

SYMBOLISM OF MASS

Bishop O'Reilly explained the symbolism of the mass, of receiving communion and the spiritual benefits derived from frequent visits to the communion rail. He praised the fruit of children's communions, of the richness of the Grace from their early appreciation of the Master. He concluded:

"As a memory of this day, let us all join in a prayer for the canonization of Pope Pius X, the Eucharistic Pope.

"May our Eucharistic king bless all the people of this great industrial city of Pittsburgh. May He bless our whole country and unite us all in the bonds of Christian love."

EUCHARIST ARRIVES

The male choir sang a hymn, and Bishop Boyle began speaking. The field, with the exception of a small area in the far right, was a mass of men. Through a gateway and this unoccupied lane, the special automobile bearing the Eucharist moved into the park. The Rev. Vincent Burke, of St. Paul's Cathedral accompanied by altar boys, Peter P. Walsh, superintendent, and a police escort, took the Sacrament to an improvised repository.

Bishop Boyle asked the throng to obey and co-operate with the police. He thanked the priests, assemblage, the police, those who otherwise had aided in the services. He said:

"I cannot refrain from telling the men of my diocese of my sense of obligation to them for this splendid act of faith, shown by your presence here. For many things I am indebted to you, but at the head of these, I offer my profound gratitude for your answer to this call for public worship to the Most Blessed Sacrament of the Altar.

"There is a duty to worship individually, but because society is His, as well as the individual, it is particularly appropriate that as a parish gets together, so a diocese should meet in a public and notorious way and confess the supremacy of Almighty God, the Kingship of Christ in this world, and the peculiarly Catholic doctrine of His real and abiding presence in the Sacrament of the Altar."

Reiterating his profession of gratitude and expressing the belief that the audience was the largest in the history of the city, he again urged on the throng that they obey the least order of the police, that they might return without harm to their homes.

LIGHT CANDLES

Immediately began the solemn procession of priests, seminarians, prelates towards the repository. Bishop Boyle, accompanied by his chaplains for the night, Rev. Casimir Schuler, of Sts. Peter and Paul Church, Larimer avenue, and Very Rev. P. K. Collins, of Butler, followed them. At the outdoor tabernacle, Father Burke transmitted the Host in the huge gold monstrance to Bishop Boyle, and under a silken canopy, moved it into the open. At the first sight of the Sacrament, 70,000 men knelt.

Altar boys with lighted candles preceded the clergy. The procession of 2,400 boys, each with a lighted candle, swung slowly towards the altar. Jets of golden light broke out sporadically, on field and in the stands. Soon the gentle glint swept over it all—and there were 70,000 lighted candles. The line moved along. Bishop Boyle, holding the monstrance, its base covered by the Benediction veil, reached the broad altar. He placed the Host on the altar, and the assemblage sang "O Salutaris" "Tantum Ergo," hymns of Benediction.

REPEAT PLEDGE

Father Delaney announced that the throng would pronounce the Holy Name pledge. Each phrase they repeated after him:

"Blessed be God . . . Blessed be His Holy Name . . . Blessed be Jesus Christ, true God and true Man . . . Blessed be the Name of Jesus."

They continued:

"I pledge myself against perjury and blasphemy, profanity and obscene speech . . . I pledge my loyalty to the flag of my country."

The arc lights, one by one, faded out. One on the altar seemed brighter, much brighter by contrast. Everywhere the sheen of gold covered the men. Faces were lost in the candle light of hammered gold.

Bishop Boyle chanted "Omne delecta mentum." . . .

CATHEDRAL BELLS TOLL

The bells of St. Paul's cathedral were heard tolling, the bell chant blown into the improvised Cathedral. The monstrance was held high—and the Papal blessing bestowed.

Father Burke moved off the field with the Sacrament. The throngs, standing, sang "Holy God We Praise Thy Name."

On Flagstaff Hill women and children joined in what is perhaps, the most ringing paean in Catholic music.

Priests, Benedictines, Capuchins, Redemptorists, Passionists, Carmelites, distinguished visiting priests, humble pastors from the hamlets in the hills, the log churches of the backwoods—all moved through the throng. The altar boys followed.

Still reverential, the 70,000 men waited until their spiritual leaders, their altar boys had gone. Then, Eucharistic Day had ended.

ATTENDING CLERICS

Prominent among the clergy were Archabbot Alfred Koch, O. S. B., of St. Vincent's. Chaplains to him were the Rev. James Connolly, Ambridge, and the Rev. A. J. Pauley. Chaplains to Bishop O'Reilly were the Rev. J. J. Lonergan, of St. Paulinus Church, Clairton; the Rev. James Brady, of St. Bernard's, Indiana, Pa.

The Very Rev. Msgr. P. C. Danner, vicar general and chancellor of the diocese; the Very Rev. William J. McMullen, vicar general and rector of St. Paul's Cathedral; Msgr. Martin Ryan, of St. Brigid's Church, and Msgr. John J. Gorzynski, of the Sounth Side; Don Francis Clougherty, O. S. B. chancellor of the Catholic University of Peking, China, and many others attended. The Rev. James S. Garahan was master of ceremonies, and canopy bearers were the Revs. A. J. Forney, George Hurley, Oliver D. Keefer, William Galvin, J. D. Nee, John J. Joyce, Joseph Mitch and William Bey. Fathers A. H. Mihm and H. A. Carlin directed the altar boys, assisted by 23 seminarians from St. Paul's monastery, Carrick.

100 DWELLINGS TO BE ERECTED

One of the largest residential building projects seen in recent years in the Pittsburgh district has been started on a tract of 107 acres in the Frankstown road at Long road, Penn Township, by Fransktown Estates, Inc., headed by E. B. Hulley.

The contract has been let for 79,000 yards of excavation for new streets, and 100 houses will be constructed within the next four months. The work will be done by 10 builders, who have closed agreements for the sites. The ground is known as the former Harry Morrow farm.

One block along the Frankstown road has been reserved as a business district. The corporation plans to install water, gas and electric lines and build a disposal plant for sewerage.

STARS OF MOVIE LAND HONOR HEARST

Mary Pickford Hostess as Hollywood Pays Tribute To Publisher at Banquet

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS,
Motion Picture Editor Universal Service.

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 13.—Affectionately, proudly and loyally the motion picture industry welcomed home its good friend, William Randolph Hearst, from his four months' visit to Europe.

This dinner, given in his honor at the Ambassador and attended by 125 of the most prominent members of the film industry, was in no sense of the word an official recognition of Mr. Hearst's great service to his country in exposing the French treaty. That recognition comes in the great civic dinner to be held Tuesday night by the Los Angeles chamber of commerce.

PRIDE IN GREETING

The gathering was an informal affair planned by Mary Pickford, Joseph Schenck, Douglas Fairbanks, Louis B. Mayer, Sid Grauman, Irving Thalberg, Jack Warner, Samuel Goldwyn, Winfield Sheehan and other outstanding figures in the film industry.

In many ways it was one of the most remarkable dinners ever given in Hollywood. Actors who are famous the world over and directors who plan the entertainment of the theater-going public vied with executives of every company in doing honor to Mr. Hearst.

There was a real pride in their greeting and a pleasant note of sentiment that is only given to those for whom our picture folk feel a genuine affection. There were few guests present who weren't associated in some way or another with motion pictures.

Mr. Hearst, with his son, George Hearst, publisher of the San Francisco Examiner, had been given no inkling of the plans that had been made to welcome him home. He returned from Chicago, Boston and New York, where in each city he had been the honored guest of a civic celebration.

MARY PICKFORD HOSTESS

Mary Pickford, hostess, who sat at Mr. Hearst's right, made it plain that this get-together on his first night home was merely to welcome one who had, at all times, been such a good friend of the motion picture industry.

There were no speeches, only the few gracious words said by Miss Pickford. Sid Grauman, Hollywood's most famous showman, offered as a little surprise a charmingly simple program of dance and song.

Eddie Cantor, with his inimitable wit and his song, George Olsen and his band, Evelyn Laye, Ethel Shutta, Julanne Johnstone and her dance partner, Roy Bradley, and Johnson and Murphy, gave an entertainment that was not so long that it became tiresome. Monday, being a day when many of the stars and directors had to be on the set early, Grauman purposely refrained from an elaborate and long drawn out program.

The guests had been bidden to come at 8 o'clock by Miss Pickford, hostess, Sid Grauman charge d'affaires, Joseph Schenck, chairman, and Douglas Fairbanks, Charles Chaplin and Louis B. Mayer, vice chairmen.

Every studio responded to the invitation. While Mr. Hearst is in the film business, this demonstration was not so much due to his motion picture interests as to his many kindnesses and helpful, friendly gestures to the entire film industry.

FAMILIARS PRESENT

Looking over the guests seated at the various tables, it didn't seem as if there was a familiar face missing. The acceptances were many, the only regrets coming from those out of the city, Norma Shearer, Gloria Swanson, Albert Kaufman, Harry Cohn, Adolphe Menjou, William Haines, Bebe Daniels, Ben Lyon, Irving Berlin, Lew Cody, Constance Bennett, Marie Dressler, Carmel Myers, June Collyer, Jack Gilbert, Harold Lloyd, Marion Davies, P. G. Wodehouse, Hope Hampton, Charles Christie, Kay Francis, Betty Bronson, "Hoot" Gibson, Sallie Eilers, Harry Rapf, Katherine Dale Owen, Robert Leonard, Edmund Goulding, George Fitzmaurice, Raoul Walsh, Harry Beaumont and many others. What a picture could be made with that cast and directors and producers.

California claims William Randolph Hearst as a native son, and Cedric Gibbons, art director of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, in planning the table decorations, chose California's own simple autumn blossoms in tans and yellow for the table decorations. There was no attempt at any formality. Each guest was allowed to sit at any table he chose.

Altogether, it was an affair that will be long remembered by the motion picture industry. There was a sincerity, a spontaniety and, yes, a certain sentiment about it all that gave those of us who had an opportunity to be present a happiness at taking part in such an event.

William Randolph Hearst was welcomed home in a manner that could not have left any doubt in his heart of the affection in which he is held by the entire motion picture industry.

Lilliendahl Killer Dies at Prison Farm

TRENTON, N. J., Oct. 13.—(AP.)—Willis Beach, 60-year-old South Vineland poultry raiser, died at the Bordentown State Prison Farm, where he was serving 10 years for manslaughter in connection with the slaying of Dr. A. William Lilliendahl in 1927.

Beach was convicted of the crime with Dr. Lilliendahl's wife, Margaret. Both were given 10-year terms, which they began serving in December, 1927.

Blood His Own By Wife's Blow, Murder Defense

Blood stains on the clothes of Carl Dickey, 35, Verona, were not evidence of the murder of Patrick Burke, 60, Blaw Knox, but the result of a bloody nose given Dickey last April by his wife, according to Dickey's defense as outlined in his "not guilty" plea before Visiting Judge Charles M. Culver, Bradford County, in Criminal Court today.

Burke died April 25 of a fractured skull received April 18, when he is alleged to have been struck with an iron bar and robbed of $25. The attack took place in the Blaw Knox steel works. Dickey was arrested when blood stains were found on his clothing shortly after the attack.

In a recent article in The Sanitarium News Bulletin, Dr. John Harvey Kellogg says, "The promotion of the dietetic use of apples and of fresh apple juice will contribute very greatly to the promotion of the health of the American people." The apple has, on the whole, few rivals among fruits in variety of color, flavor and nutritional value. McCann's has always featured apples, selecting and packing them with great care. 13 Carloads of Grapes Sold at McCann's in 3 days!

Last Thursday we offered five carloads of Blue Concord Grapes at 37 cents for a 12 quart basket. By Friday noon the entire five carloads were gone. Not to dissappoint the many customers whom we knew would expect to buy grapes Friday afternoon and Saturday, our buyer hastily purchased 8 carloads more. The fact that we had to pay more for these grapes than we sold them for did not stop us from "making good" on our ad. This is just one of the things that makes McCann's McCann's . . . the store "for absolute reliability."

ALL HOSPITALS HERE APPROVED

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 13.—Full approval of every Pittsburgh hospital by the American College of Surgeons was announced here at the opening session of the Thirteenth Annual Hospital Standardization Conference of the college.

Approval of the hospitals by the group indicates that they meet requirements of safe and efficient service to the patient. When the first conference was held, according to Dr. Franklin H. Martin, director general of the national surgeons' organization, only 89 hospitals in the United States and Canada passed the test; today, he says, 2,063 hospitals are on the approved list.

Martin pointed out that, while there are many more hospital cases today than formerly, the death rate is only four to every 100 patients, less than half of the average 13 years ago.

Yearly inspections of all hospitals with more than 25 beds are made. Pittsburgh's 10 hospitals, with a capacity of 5,277 patients, have all been approved.

Brother and Sister Die in Plane Crash

LONGMONT, Colo., Oct. 13.—(AP.)—Clyde Blackwell, 34, and his sister, Winifred, 24, were killed in the crash of their airplane at Blackwell's private flying field east of Longmont.

Blackwell, who was a licensed commercial pilot, was giving his sister flying instructions and she was at the controls. The ship slipped into a nose dive, witnesses said, about 300 feet above the ground.

Stomach Pain! Nearly Died

Pain Ended Quick by Modern ACIDINE

"Was in a terrible state for years with acid indigestion," writes Mrs. Nellie Crouse of Kansas City, Mo. "After eating had such terrible pains in my stomach I thought I'd die. Would get nervous and numb, and my heart would nearly stop beating. Nothing helped until I tried ACIDINE. Now I can eat, sleep, enjoy life again."

That's what thousands say about this amazing prescription, ACIDINE. Entirely different from other known remedies. Contains the marvelous digestant, called Japtase. In laboratory experiments Japtase has been tested on certain starchy foods which cause an acute stomach distress. It digested 400 times its weight of such foods in only 10 minutes. Five other scientific ingredients neutralize burning acid, soothe irritated stomach lining, stop gas and headache from acidity. End pain like a flash.

Don't run risks of serious and more painful stomach troubles. Get ACIDINE from your druggist today. Costs only a few cents. Watch acid indigestion, burning stomach, belching, pain, heartburn, bad taste, heaviness, gas and headache from acidity vanish. Eat, drink, smoke all you like. Results guaranteed. CHAT ABOUT OUR OWN STAGE ALONG WITH HOLLYWOOD AND NEW YORK GOSSIP

John Gilbert Aviator Now As Cameras Grind Out More Air Films

By HARRISON CARROLL.

(Copyright, 1930, Premier Syndicate.)

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 13.

And still they come—the air pictures. Lieut. Com. Weed, of the air forces, is out at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer to write an aviation story. This will be his third. He was the author of Ramon Novarro's "The Flying Fleet," and of "Dirigible," a Columbia production.

In all probability, Jack Gilbert will be the star of the new story. M. G. M. is on the lookout for virile roles for Jack, and Air pictures offer ad mirable opportunities.

John Gilbert

It will be recalled that Warner Brothers also intend to make a big sky-epic next year under the direction of William Wellman. Their story is to embrace all branches of the service.

SINCERE FLATTERY

William LeBaron of R-K-O got a laugh when he spoke over the microphone at the premiere of Fox's "The Big Trail."

"I know this will be a good picture," said Bill, "because we are making one like it."

STAR THRILLED

Will Rogers like Greta Garbo, always excited curiosity in Hollywood because he is seldom seen in public places.

When he made a surprise appearance on the stage after the opening of "The Big Trail," all the early leavers stopped in the aisles to hear his speech.

Will introduced Mayor Rolph, of San Francisco.

"They chose me," he said, "because I am the contact man between art and politics. I am to the motion picture colony what Bob Shuler is to the Methodist church.

"It seems I am always introducing somebody these days. I dined with the mayor, too, but if he gets into any trouble later on tonight I am not responsible for it.

"I'm a sort of of an atheist, politically. I don't belong to any organized party. I am a Democrat.

"I never come to openings, because I can't think of anything to say over the radio. Of course, that don't stop a lot of them."

PROPER CREDIT

Some Eastern newspaper reviewers are inclined to give Florenz Ziegfeld most of the credit for the film version of "Whoopee."

As a matter of fact, production was ready to start on this picture before Mr. Ziegfeld arrived on the coast, and he had little to do with the picture. Sam Goldwyn deserves the blame or praise in this case, and Mr. Ziegfeld, who has his own spot in the sun, would be the first to admit it.

Jeannette Loff

STAR LOANED

Since things are a little quiet at Universal, Jeannette Loff will be loaned to Tiffany to play opposite Rex Lease in "The Midnight Stage."

This is the star's second western in a series of six.

DO YOU KNOW that Bodil Rosing, the character actress, is the mother of Mrs. Monte Blue?

27th Ward Women Will Meet Today

The Twenty-seventh Ward branch, League of Women Voters, meets this afternoon at the home of Mrs. Albert S. Smith, 1815 Morrell street. Ralph Hudson, director of the Woods Run Settlement, will speak on "The Social Background and Political Life of the Twenty-seventh Ward.

Drama

Railroad Y. M. C. A. To Plan Crusade

Plans for a membership campaign will be outlined by officials of Y. M. C. A. at a dinner in the downtown branch Friday night. The dinner is to be given by the Twenty-eighth Street and Pitcairn branches of the Pennsylvania Railroad. The campaign is to be staged by all railroad associations in North America.

Firemen Quell Brush Blaze Periling Park

Members of the Homeville Volunteer Fire Department were called out yesterday afternoon to extinguish a brush fire near the City Wood Park. The firemen succeeded in keeping the blaze from spreading to the park and the athletic field and to a coal tipple near the park.

BOXER GETS HEROINE IN MOVIE MIXUP IN HARRIS

By CLARENCE E. GRUNDISH

Jack Dempsey, who once was a prize-fighter, turned actor a season or so ago and played in a drammer, "The Big Fight." Now the affair has gotten into the movies and has found local haven on the Harris screen.

It is all about a great big pugilist, the fragile heroine he loves, a weakling brother and a tough gangster.

In the film version Guinn Williams handles the role Mr. Dempsey created on the stage. The supporting players include Lois Lane, Ralph Ince and Stepin Fetchit. Incidentally, this Fetchit is the darkest spot in the film and, at the same time, the brightest.

Fists fly, bullets fly and the big fight is staged as the climax. Murder is done and the movie sleuths go sleuthing around. Much of it is like the drama, "Broadway." Only it isn't nearly as good.

WELFARE GOAL $1,500,000

The goal of the Welfare Fund campaign to take place in November will be close to a million and a half dollars according to reports released today. Announcement of the actual figure will be made at a meeting of the Welfare Fund Council, this afternoon at 4 o'clock in the Venetian Room of the Wm. Penn Hotel.

The goal of the campaign represents the budgets of all member agencies for 1931. It includes an increased estimate for family relief and the estimated expenses of eight new member agencies, including the Boy Scouts, Allegheny County Council West, Girl Scouts, Pittsburgh Goodwill Industries, and Roselia Maternity Hospital. Budgets of all 39 of the Welfare Fund agencies have been carefully reviewed by the Budget Committee, and every possible economy has been effected. Members of the Budget Committee are George P. Rhodes, Chairman, M. W. Acheson Jr., George H. Clapp, F. C. Irish, Frank Wilbur Main, David I. McCahill, Mrs. W. B. Schiller, and Mrs. Wm. Thaw, Jr.

WALTER WINCHELL On Broadway

(Copyright 1930 by Daily Mirror, Inc.)

Things I Never Knew Till Now

That Coney Island got its name from the fact that it used to be overrun with rabbits.

That in the old days Grand and Broome streets (N. Y.), were known as "Murderer's Row." Since, all business has moved uptown.

That Shakespeare was buried 17 feet down.

That the phenomenon which causes a blotter to absorb ink is capillary attraction. (How could you all exist without me?)

That humming birds can fly backwards, you lovely people!

That Friday, the sixth day of the week, is the only day named for a woman. From a Goddess of the character of the Roman Venus.

That modern whalers capture them by electrocuting them.

That five hundred people assembled daily to see Louis XIV get up and go to bed. A plaz-ure!

That John Van Eyck, of Bruges, was the inventor of oil paintings; the ancient painters used wax.

That Sterne's body was peddled by his landlady to defray his lodgings. You don't know who Sterne was? Imagine!

That the first circulating library in America was the outgrowth of a club called The Junto, established by Franklin in Phila.

That Balzac wrote and published forty volumes before he could write one to which he was willing to put his name.

That Chaucer, Burns, Lamb and Hawthorne (you're gonna die at this one!) were all custom house officers!

That as late as 1850 you could buy building lots on 7th avenue, right here in New York City, for $500.

That Nat Hale said: "I regret that I have but one life to give to my country, etc.," at the corner of E. Broadway and Market street; where the Statue now in City Hall really should be.

That Greenwich Village used to be a big tobacco farm, and as for Hudson street, which runs through it; it got its name from old Hendrick Hudson, who used to trade with the Injuns there, of course.

That Meyerbeer, the composer of "Le Prophete" suffered all his life with stomach ache, and his music sounds that way.

That 10,000 people can all sit down in Central Park at once, there being that many seats in the place.

That those mystery books that sell for four bits at the seegar stores come out in first editions of 200,000, which probably breaks the record for first printings of all time; they being regular $2 books in format. I merely write 'em, I haven't time to draw pictures.

That of the distinguished group of Concord literary men, Thoreau was the only native of the place.

That the poet, Longfellow, when in collitch, used to warble in the Brunswick Unitarian Choir. Probably tenor.

That Victor McLaglen, of the phlickers, who uses such "What Price Glory" language, is the son of a Church of Eng. Bishop.

That Sam Fraunces, founder and first proprietor of the Fraunces Tavern, still at Pearl and Broad sts., was a crapshooter.

That the English artist, Hudson, instructor of Sir Joshua Reynolds, could paint a head, but needed help to arrange the shoulders.

That the Gin Rickey was born during 1870 in the St. James Hotel, which used to stand at the corner of Broadway and 26th street. It was christened after Col. Joseph K. Rickey, of Calloway County, Mo.

That some of us who sell gossip for a living would welcome one of those threatened "knockout blows" so we could relax.

That the Hamiltn, Ontario, telephone directory reveals a Dr. Pain, a Dr. Wrong and a Dr. Deadman.

That St. Simeon Stylites, who was an originator of ideas, had his imitators, too. Shipwreck Kelly swiping his pole sitting theme. Simeon, you recall, at the age of 40, built a pillar 60 ft. high, climbed to the top and stayed there for 30 years till he croaked.

That Congressman Bloom spends $100 yearly feeding pigeons which flock to his window sill six stories above Dizzy avenue.

That Shelley read the Bible through four times before he was 21.

That it was a fancy of John Stuart Mill, that when the greater evils of life shall have been removed, the human race is to find its chief enjoyment in reading Wordsworth's poetry.

Many Entertainers On Club Mirado Bill

A new floor show is now being presented in the club Mirado, on Second avenue, near McClure street, in Homestead. It features Bill Adams as master of ceremonies. Other entertainers include Jeanne Rose, blues singer, formerly of the Parady Club, New York; Maurine and Norva, dancers, formerly with George White's Scandals, and Molly Son, specialty dancer. Music is furnished by Leroy Bradley and his Eight Miradorians.

NOBILITY AND TUNES IN FULTON PICTURE

Nobility just about floods the market in "Monte Carlo," new Fulton screen feature, what with Jeanette MacDonald as a countess, Jack Buchanan as a count and Claude Allister as a prince. It is a fast-moving comedy drama involving the marriage intentions of the three titles in which Count Jack could win long before the fadeout if the countess only were aware of his real status as a count instead of the hairdresser he pretends to be. You see, there are a lot of cross purposes in this amazing picture, which was deftly directed by Ernst Lubitsch.

Music is logically introduced through the presentation of an opera scene as part of the story, and it is well done. Miss MacDonald is among those who lift their voices in song—naturally.

Short features, including a song comedy, "A Hot Time In The Old Town," round out the program.

DRAMA AND COMEDY ON STAGE TONIGHT

"Hello Paris," a musical comedy starring Chic Sale, opens in the Alvin tonight.

Next week the Alvin attraction will be Queenie Smith in a musical comedy, "The Street Singer."

In the Pitt tonight the George Sharp Players will present a satirical comedy, "The Royal Family," about an actor group which the public has identified as the Drew-Barrymore clan.

"Sure Fire" will be next week's offering in the Pitt.

MASTER MYSTERIES By ARTHUR HOERL

THE CUSTOMS FRAUD

CHAPTER I.

There had been a rather uneventful week so far as sensational news was concerned prior to the arrival of the Red Crescent liner Ruratania on its record-breaking trip from England. There had been, of course, the usual number of fires, divorces, obscure suicides, reports from the perennial disarmament conference, prohibition killings, but nothing had occurred worthy of grabbing the front page and holding onto it.

City Editor Bailey glanced about the reportorial room of the Daily Journal until his eyes lighted on Robin Dale, whose feet were perched on an open drawer of his desk and whose abstracted gaze pronounced him to be in the midst of profound meditation of some kind.

"Dale!"

Bailey swung around in his chair as Robin Dale came to the desk.

"The Ruratania is docking about twelve—just made a new record for the trip across. See what you can dig up."

"Okay, Mr. Bailey," Dale said without any great enthusiasm. The city editor was regarding him with a whimsical smile.

"What was all the deep thinking, Dale? You're not going to write a play by any chance?"

"Aren't the plays on Broadway bad enough? No, I was just wonderin' if in this mechanically perfect age of ours real romance and adventure haven't been kicked into obscurity."

"Now that is something to worry about." Bailey laughed lightly (you see, the city editor is not always a gruff and taciturn tyrant, as the movies would have us believe). "Well, you're lucky—you can spread yourself on that romance and adventure stuff. There's a special messenger on the Ruratania bringing over the personal jewels of the Czarina. Old John Lamont, the oil man, commissioned some firm in London to procure them at any price. That was almost a year ago. The whole thing has been done with a great deal of secrecy because, I understand, the Soviet government lays claims to the stuff. However, I have a tip that they're on the Ruratania and you can spot them when they come through the customs. There's plenty of romance and adventure and tragedy in those things, so go and wallow in it, and all I want is a good feature."

"All I want is a little excitement," Dale said with an aroused interest. "From what I've read about the jewels something always happens whenever they show up. In order to satisfy popular fancy they've associated some sort of a curse with the possession of the Cardiz diamond—that's the most unusual piece in the collection. It's a flawless stone of nearly 15 carats and is blood red. There are also eight ropes of perfectly-matched pearls in the collection. I hope the curse hasn't petered out and we may get some excitement."

Robin Dale had occasion to recall that wish many times before the final word had been written on the Cardiz Case, as it came to be called.

The Ruratania was scheduled to dock at a North River pier below Eighteenth street. Robin Dale arrived at the pier half an hour before 12. The huge ocean greyhound could be seen from the dock. It was in midstream, being maneuvered by a flotilla of tugs, reminding one of the story of the giant and the Lilliputians—stubby little craft turning, twisting, roping the great ship, tugging it into position, pushing and pulling and finally towing it like a helpless mass toward the shore.

Dale chatted with various of the customs men whom he had become acquainted with on other occasions such as this. He was unable to get much advance information regarding the consignment of jewels. The liner was being nosed into her berth when Dale stepped into the office of Inspector Carlin, of the Secret Service Department. Carlin or one of his assistants was usually on hand when a foreign steamer docked, and although those who hurried down the gangplank did not know it, every person has been carefully scrutinized as he or she stepped onto American soil.

Robin Dale and Inspector Carlin were on the friendliest of terms, having been together on more than one case which had concerned international smugglers, undesirable aliens, criminals and counterfeiters. The inspector was able to confirm the arrival of the famous gems, but beyond that could tell nothing.

When the gangplank was finally in place an unusual thing happened. Instead of the usual stream of humanity only a single officer of the Ruratania descended. He spoke in a low tone to one of the officials on the pier and was immediately escorted to Mr. Josephson, in charge of the Customs Department. Shortly thereafter Inspector Carlin was called in. Meanwhile, no one was permitted to leave the ship. Finally the officer, Mr. Josephson, Inspector Carlin and Dale (through the influence of Carlin) boarded the Ruratania.

Dale had been cognizant of the fact that something unusual had taken place, but not until the party arrived at a stateroom on Deck B did he learn the full truth. The chief steward and another officer of the ship were standing in the open door to the stateroom. It was occupied by Albert Whitely, who, Dale soon learned, was the messenger bringing the Czarina's jewels to New York.

"I would like you to tell Mr. Josephson, of the United States customs, what you have told us, Mr. Whitely," the ship's officer said.

Whitely was a man not over 40, quite solidly built, with a strong face; a man, Dale thought, who could take care of himself under almost any circumstances. One habitually calm and self-possessed, Whitely showed very little agitation but rather was quite angry.

"Upon boarding the steamer at Southampton I immediately placed this case . . ." Whitely pointed to a large steel case on the bed . . . "in the ship's safe. It contained gems of tremendous value. I have already prepared my declaration which places the value at £300,000. I had no occasion to remove the case during the journey, but today, shortly before we docked, I obtained it from the custodian and upon opening it there was not a single gem left in the case!"

NEW IDEA SAVES SILK HOSE
Did you ever realize that it is the oily excretion of the sebaceous glands and rubbing that keep you buying silk hose and lingerie so often? This oil film, that next-to-skin garments absorb is destructive to silks, because it softens and rots the fibre. Soap and water alone will not cleanse it out. Only a solvent like Energine cuts it.
Add a tablespoonful of Energine to a quart of lukewarm soapy water. Wash thoroughly, rinse well. Note the new cleanliness—the pleasing freshness—see how original color is revived. And all this with far less rubbing. You'll be amazed at difference in results from washing in just soap and water, and your silken hose and undergarments will last longer. And don't forget millions use Energine daily for quick removal of dirt and grease spots from suits, hats, dresses, gloves, shoes. Large can 25c. Get Energine today.

LUCKY GIRL

Trial Time Approaches and Cathie Is Frightened

CHAPTER XLIII

The day was warm. May. The flowers would be blooming on the hills now . . . Ma's garden would be in bloom . . . stocks, daffodils, bridal wreath . . .

Cathie sat on her cot, thinking about it. She thought about the afternoons that she used to wander around town, trying to kill time. She tried to think how Grant avenue would look on a busy Saturday afternoon . . . the smartly dressed women milling by the windows. . . . Flower stands on the street corners . . . that one-armed man that made the nice bouquets with lots of maidenhair . . . was he still there? of course . . . he must be. . . . It was really such a little while that she had been here, in jail. . . .

On afternoons like this she used to have ice cream sodas, feeling selfish, to think she had them alone. When she felt blue and discouraged she used to go and buy new clothes. . . . Whatever became of that last dress she bought? Blue. Cornflower blue. Like her eyes, Gordon said. She'd like to see it again . . . too bad they hadn't sent it to her, but of course she couldn't wear it. . . . She was in mourning . . . and it would be out of style by this time next year. . . .

If . . . if she lived. . . .

Cathie thought about dying. Tried to think about it. It was very possible that she'd never see another May. Mr. Allan thought they'd give her life if they didn't acquit her, but they didn't always. Twenty-six women had been hanged . . . or that other thing . . . electric chair, in the United States. Mr. Allan told her that himself. . . . Wonder what they were like, those women. . . . Were they all guilty? Or were some of them like her . . . innocent . . . paying for something they didn't do . . .

Sorry for Gordon

Well, it wouldn't be so terrible to die. Everyone had to do it some time. It would be hard on the family though. . . . But not so much worse than having her here. Thank goodness Eddie was too far away to know much about it, and Jean in the East . . . they were keeping it from Jean. . . .

Wonder whether Ruth would be married before . . . or after? It would have been nice to see Ruth's wedding. She'd never seen a wedding, except her own, and that wasn't really like a wedding. . . .

Poor Ruth . . . she minded so much . . . being disgraced by a sister in jail. . . . Maybe it was hard on Mr. Browning, too. . . .

Well, she couldn't help it. Some day they'd discover how it happened, and then she would be cleared. . . . The family would like that.

Of course she'd like it, too. But not so much as she would have once. She had been here too long now. She didn't care so much. Her feelings were getting blunted. If she could go on staying here and didn't have to go to trial she'd like it better. It wasn't so bad here. . . Gordon could come to see her.

Gordon. . . Cathie was sorry for Gordon. If he didn't love her so well he'd wish he had never seen her. She had brought him nothing but unhappiness. She hadn't brought much happiness to anyone. She had tried hard enough, but it hadn't worked. She had tried to give the family some happiness. . . . It had seemed to her that they would be happy if they had more money, but it hadn't happened that way . . . Nobody had been really happy afterwards. . . . Nothing went right. . . .

Cheong Visits

Mr. Farnsworth, too. Poor Alfred. . . . He had wanted her to marry him, and he had said that she made him happy. He did like her sitting with him in the long . . . nings . . . the evenings when he nodded over his book and woke up and patted her hand, and went to sleep again . . . but what real happiness had she ever given him? Their marriage was only a farce . . . it had brought trouble with his only son . . . had resulted in his death. . . .

Cathie sat very silent in the small whitewashed room, listening to her insistent, scratching thoughts, thinking of the thousand and one little things that she might have done for her husband . . . thinking of them, now, when it was too late. . . .

"It won't be long now, dearie," Mrs. Evans, the matron, said.

"I know," Cathie said, "and I'm sorry."

Mrs. Evans gave her a long, knowing look.

"She's guilty all right. Dreads the trial, poor thing," she told Curly Hink, the policeman who was on duty in the elevator when she went home that night.

"Sure. But it'll be a damn shame if she don't get off."

She sighed. "Yes, and her so young. I hate to think of her going to San Quentin with all the riffraff. She's such a refined, gentle little thing."

"A Chinese man to see you," they told Cathie that evening. "He has his pass all signed properly, but you don't have to see him if you don't want to."

"Oh, but I want to! It must be Cheong!"

It was Cheong. Wearing his black coat and his derby hat. Carrying a screw of brown paper that opened, disclosing lilies. White Chinese lilies, golden hearted, full ivory-blossomed, on the thick pale green stems.

"This is a most uphappy occasion," he said in his ceremonious English, "but I wish to assure you of my good wishes. In my small way I may be of assistance, I hope. I—I have many Chinese boys, who are my friends. Quite possibly one may discover evidence. For it is written in the book of history, the ignorant may change the course of life of the great."

Speak of Future

Cathie smiled sadly. "Cheong, you did the only thing that could really help me already. You found Mr. Moore for me. I can't ever thank you for that."

"These things are simple," the fat old Chinaman said. "When one is well acquainted. In China we have a saying. Roughly translated it would be . . . Be of good cheer, for virtue never dies."

They let Gordon come at last.

It was a long while before Cathie could trust herself to speak. His eyes were so heavy, his dark, thin face was so marked with fatigue. He looked as old as his brother, David. As old as his Uncle Andrew . . . Because of her.

"Gordon . . . are you very tired?"

"I don't know. Perhaps. We've been working hard, you know . . . . Cathie, I love you so—"

"And I've brought you nothing but misery."

"It's I that brought you the misery, Cathie. From the very first."

"No. Only happiness. I couldn't stand it now if it weren't for you. I couldn't, Gordon."

When he spoke again his voice was hoarse and muffled. "Some day I'll make it up to you. We'll go away, where you can forget. Russia maybe. I'm considering a project there. It's the biggest thing we've ever thought of. We may not get it. I hope we do, because it would mean clearing out—you and I, Cathie. Together."

Cathie Is Afraid

Cathie thought about it. Russia. . . . Easter services with people carrying tall candles and kissing each other. . . . Sleighs in winter time, and wolves lurking in black forests . . . and cross stitch embroidery, and the new art. . . . Russia . . . not very real . . . not very likely that it ever would be real. . . .

He was thinking. . . . "There isn't a chance . . . and I can't bear it. . . . I can't bear her knowing it . . . ."

Gently Cathie raised his head. "Don't worry, Gordon. You mustn't worry. It doesn't do any good."

He began to take heart again. "Cathie, has Mr. Allan told you how important it is for you to impress the jury in the right way? Told you to be looking pretty? Pale, you know, but lovely . . . oh, you can't look any other way but appealing, but you'll remember to impress them, Cathie? Cathie, my dear, you know that there are many things against us, the hiding of the clothes, and so many other things. . . . You'll not forget all that it means for you to do your part?"

"I won't forget," she promised.

A chill struck her.

For the first time Cathie was afraid.

Household Hints

Save the stick that the new rug was rolled on, cut a notch in one end and you have a new member for the clothes-prop brigade.

One housewife gives the family boiled rice for the washday breakfast cereal and uses the rice water for light starching of the clothes. Not bad, is it?

Don't economize on the quality of your mattress and springs when buying a new bed. One-third of your life is spent in bed, and it is a foolish economy to stint in comfort in this direction. Find some other way and buy good comfortable bed fixtures.

Girl Does Pay for Pretended 'Mad' at Man She Likes, Says Fay King

MAYBE HE TOOK ALL I SAID SERIOUSLY, AND WON'T CALL ME UP AGAIN!
YOU'RE NOT PEEVED BECAUSE I TOOK JANE TO THE DANCE, ARE YOU?
DON'T SPEAK TO ME! I WILL NOT LISTEN!
BUT, HOW IS HE GOING TO EXPLAIN, IF YOU WON'T SPEAK TO HIM?
FAY KING

By FAY KING

How often a girl makes herself miserably unhappy by pretending to be more angry with the man she likes than she really is.

She refuses to listen to his explanation which could clear up the misunderstanding.

"I'll never speak to you again!" she snaps, so seriously you can't blame him for walking off.

Then she has a good cry, and waits for him to come back.

If he doesn't come or call her up, she's utterly miserable.

She can accomplish much more by acting sweetly hurt, and graciously forgiving him.

It takes some time to become friends, and only a moment to end friendship.

Even if you are justified in your anger, amiability will smooth out the situation more satisfactorily for all concerned.

Love's Reawakening -:- Continuation of Loves Awakening

By ADELE GARRISON

The Travelers Meet Philip Veritzen

I was raging inside, at the fate which had brought about an encounter with Philip Veritzen just when I thought I had successfully evaded him. I was worried, too, about Mary, who must be almost smothering beneath the blankets under which she had dived at her first sight of him. She would not actually smother, of course, but she would be most uncomfortable. I put aside thoughts of her as one of the garage men came to the side of the car and looked inquiringly at me without speaking.

"I have a blow-out," I said. "Will you attend to it, please?"

"Do you just want the spare put on or shall we fix the tire that's gone?"

"Just put on the spare," I said, and added mendaciously, "We only have a little way to go," because of the aversion I know garage men have for trifling jobs. Then I handed him a liberal tip with a request to be as quick as possible. He sprang to his work with gratifying alertness, and I leaned back against the seat, carefully keeping my eyes averted from the other side of the garage, where Lillian had indicated my employer was standing. Then Lillian spoke quickly in the almost inarticulate murmur to which I am accustomed.

Evidently the great man realized that we had seen him and that any ignoring of the fact would be ridiculous. The next instant I heard his voice, beautifully resonant as ever—he has wonderful tone, diction and modulation — an actor's voice, and something more, something which sets it apart as one of the half dozen really great voices upon the American stage, though it has been many years since he appeared in a role.

"What wonderful good fortune, Lillian, Mrs. Graham! To think of coming on you up here in this section!"

"What's wrong with the section?" Lillian demanded saucily. "Smallpox epidemic. We haven't seen a thing amiss so far."

He laughed, but there was no mirth in his voice, and I, who had conned his moods and tenses with fair diligence during the past two years, guessed that he would have given much to have snarled a discourteous retort at his old friend.

"Nothing is wrong with it," he said, keeping his lips smiling with a patent effort. "But it surely is surprising to see you up here in the winter time, so far from home."

"The surprise is mutual, old darling," Lillian said airily, and I rejoiced to see how with a gage of battle laid down she could put aside the depression which had been hers and enter the lists with vehemence and evident enjoyment. "We haven't seen you, you know, for just as many days as we have been absent from your vision. What's more, we had about given up seeing you."

It was a daring shot—one which I would not have ventured—this direct reference to Philip Veritzen's melo-dramatic departure from New York with his correlating announcement that he might never come back.

Mr. Veritzen stiffened involuntarily, and for the fraction of a second his stereotyped smile left his lips. Then he bowed from the hips as though he were in a drawing room.

"My Dear Lillian," he said impressively, "you know I could not stay any longer away from the light of your smile, and Mrs. Graham's." He favored me with another bow.

"That, of course, we coyly acknowledge," Lillian gibed. "And we're modestly glad to be the means of bringing you back. Aren't we, Madge? Harry's been tearing his hair for weeks because he says things need the 'master.'"

The way she uttered the word was a marvelous combination of a gibe and a genuine tribute. But Mr. Veritzen chose to regard it as a bit of fun poked at him. He stiffened again, then smiled at her with the evident recollection that it does no good at all to get angry at Lillian, no matter what she says or does.

"He can go to his barber in peace tomorrow then," my employer said, "for I shall be in my office at ten."

There was a betraying something in his voice which brought a quick conviction to me. This meeting had forced his hand. He had not intended to return to New York upon the morrow, but now with the illusion that he had been far away shattered beyond recall, he had swiftly decided upon an immediate return.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Tuesday, October 14

An element of secrecy, subtlety and subterfuge seems to dominate the affairs of this day, judging by the emphasis of the Neptunian force, both by lunar and mutual operation. This need not necessarily be interpreted as baneful, but accents the advisability of settling matters by diplomacy, secret agreement or possibly intrigue rather than aggressive methods. There may be an undesirable change as well as stubborn frustration to encounter.

Those whose birthday it is are urged to make their plans with a degree of discretion and shrewdness, as their best interests may be furthered by diplomacy, intrigue or secret agreement, rather than by direct action or aggressive enterprise. There may be an unwelcome change and also tenacious obstacles to be surmounted by measures of expediency.

A child born on this day may have a rather eccentric or peculiar disposition, inclined to accomplish its ends by subtle methods or secret agreements. It may incline to and suffer from hypocrisy and misrepresentation. Its career may be one of strange vicissitudes.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Teachers Health Is of Importance, Too

Our public and private schools are in full swing. Mothers have planned the school clothes for the children, and the children are busy with their lessons.

But what about the teachers? We hope they have had a long vacation of relaxation and rest. Some have been traveling and seeing something of the world. Others will have been in the mountains or at the seashore. I trust they have returned to their important work with renewed vigor and good health.

One of the essentials for success in teaching is good health. Teaching is a strenuous job. The demands made upon our teachers are tremendous and exacting. Have you ever thought about their problems?

It seems to me that a teacher is in many respects the most important member of society. We trust our children to them, not only for supervision in educational matters, but their health, morals and social supervision are in the teachers' hands.

Not only must the teacher have good health, but she must have certain intangible qualities of leadership, personality and common sense, as well as good mental, moral and social qualities. She must have infinite patience and tact.

This public servant must regard her own health well. Since it is her province to teach her pupils how to be well and strong, she must give a good example.

After teaching long hours, the teacher must find time to be out-of-doors, walking or exercising in some way. She must have sunshine, simple food and abundant sleep if she is to have good health.

Just as every boy and girl should have their teeth and eyes looked after during the long summer vacation, so must the teacher look out for her own organs. Every physical defect or weakness should be attended to promptly.

Everybody needs relaxation and entertainment. Certainly the teacher is no exception to this rule. More and more men are taking up golf, and so are the women. But there are other out-of-door sports that take less time and energy than golf. To have some diversion of this sort keeps the spirit young and the heart gay, and it adds greatly to the store of health.

If the health is kept vigorous the hard work of teaching and discipline looks less formidable. Each day's work will take on added interest and real pleasure.

TELL IT TO SALLY

By SALLY MARTIN

Don't Let Him Make You Over to Fit His Pattern—No Matter How Much You Love Him

He's a great little Fixer—
Always fixing somebody over—

Telling them about the little faults and failings, pointing out their follies and flops—

Then he wonders why he isn't a Social Riot . . . particularly with Marie.

Marie, folks, is the girl our Hero is going to marry. That is—he's going to marry her, maybe, after he's remodeled her according to his fancy. And he's quite peeved because Marie doesn't bust into big wet tears of gratitude at the idea.

"Dear Sally:

"I'm just another one of the many who are in a quandary and come to you for help. I guess I need some good advice, and I feel sure that you can give it to me. So please listen to my tale.

"Like so many of the others, the big thing is 'I'm in love.' At least, I think I am. But—

"He, my Tom, is a fine looking, splendid chap. He doesn't drink or gamble, and he has all of the qualities that are supposed to make a perfect gentleman. His folks, too, are just the finest kind of people. He has an exceptionally good position, and can give me a wonderful home. I was so happy when he told me he loved me, and asked me to be his wife, but now I don't know. . . . There is one thing that makes me terribly unhappy. He is forever looking for my shortcomings and correcting and criticizing me.

"The things he picks on are mostly just little things, like a slang phrase that everybody uses, but that seems to get his goat, but he seems to think I should be perfect. His kind of perfect. Then, too, if I uphold some of my friends who do things they shouldn't, he storms and raves, and seems to think that I must agree with his ideas, and if I don't agree with him, he tells me I am just being obstinate. Then, if I give him a little silence, that is all wrong, too, because I'm 'just pouting,' as he puts it, and, of course, that makes his blood just boil.

"It really is a big problem, Miss Martin, because aside from all this, he is a dear, and things go along dandy. There isn't anything he wouldn't do for me. He takes me everywhere, and has given me many beautiful things. He never comes to see me without bringing me a box of candy or some other little thing he thinks I will like. And he often sends me flowers.

"He is 39 and I am 24. Do you think the difference in our ages is what makes him like that? And do you think that difference is too great for us to be happy? I hope that you will give me some help, because I need it. I'm unhappy when I'm away from him, and miserable when he keeps harping on my faults.

"Why does he do it?"

"What shall I do?

"Shall I marry him or not?

"MARIE K."

What ails him?

Well, I may be wrong, but I have a 100 per cent hunch that the Big Boy is just plain stuck on himself. It's not a new disease. A lot of us have it. And we keep right on having it until somebody jars us out of it. So it's up to you, sister, to get busy and do a lot of jarring.

For, believe me, unless you do, your marriage will end in tragedy.

You may think you can be happy if you'll act the part he wishes you to act, but don't kid yourself. Marriage is the one game in the world where acting is out. Sooner or later it will show up all your purposes and pretenses. If you can't go into marriage as honest partners . . . loving each other for what you are . . . realizing and respecting each other's difference . . . then keep out! For there's no hell on earth like that of a marriage which is based on fear and evasion and deceit.

What'll you do? Be honest. The next time he begins to pick, face him and say:

"Listen, Hon. I love you, but you've got to get this straight. I am what I am, and I can't be anything else. I'll try to do my best, of course . . . and I'm grateful for help and friendly advice. But you might as well know right now that you'll never be able to make me over. And I'd like to know what's the big idea of trying to make me over, anyway. Why conclude that you're God's pet pattern for a human being? I, too, have a right to be myself . . . to think my own thoughts . . . to live and express life in my own way. If you can't love me as I am . . . and if you don't think that my thoughts and my ways meet your standards, then we'd better break this thing off before it goes any further."

Say that—and show him that you mean it. That will wake him up if anything will. And if he won't wake up . . . if he still insists on strutting his stuff by fixing over the universe . . . scoot while the scooting's good, because, believe me, boys with that idea are plain poison.

The Marry-Go-Round

BY HELEN ROWLAND

A Man in Your Life

Should a successful professional or business woman marry, after 40, or cling to her independence and her single blessedness?

That is a question which is troubling not a few widows and spinsters, who are tired of dining alone, but still cherish the privilege of putting their hair in kid-curlers at night, and taking their breakfasts in bed.

It all DEPENDS, ma cherie! It all depends on the kind of woman you are—and on the kind of man you purpose annexing. There are some women, to whom life is just an arid desert, unless they have a man around to worry about and fuss over; to wash the car, take the dog out and get the corks out of bottles. They simply can't stand that detached, unmarried feeling!

* * *

There are some women who will keep right on going to the altar, even when they have to go there in a wheel-chair. There is no use picturing life to them, unless you paint a man in the foreground—because they just can't SEE it! (I'm sort of glucose that way, myself.)

Yet, taking on a husband, after your life is "all set" and your ways have jelled into habits, and you have fixed ideas about the temperature of a room or the height of a window shade, is a bigger hazard than any you will find on a midget golf course.

* * *

Companionship is the sweetest and most precious thing in the world. And, if you have found a man whose life fits into your own, whose ways and tastes, and who speaks your own language, then the gods are making a pet of you!

* * *

But, after all, marriage is for just one purpose. The purpose of making and building a LIFE TOGETHER — whether it's a home life, a gypsy life or a career. And when you have made your OWN life, built up your own career and found your place in the scheme of things, all by your lonely, why spoil the scenery and disrupt the ensemble?

* * *

Take a brand-new man into your life, after you have reached the golden forties, is as risky as bringing a brand-new piece of furniture into a room that has already been artistically completed by an interior decorator.

* * *

If he fits into the arrangement, blends with the color-scheme, doesn't crowd everything else out, and seems just the one thing needed to complete the whole plan of your life and add the one perfect and necessary touch to give it charm and dignity and balance, then you are a daughter of Fortunatus and would be a fool to refuse him.

* * *

But, if he is too young or too old, too brilliant or too dull; if he does NOT blend with your life, or you cannot blend with his, the experiment is doomed to failure. And a matrimonial failure, after forty, is a tragedy.

We marry when we are young, because we are pliable and can adjust ourselves to each other and GROW together into one personality.

* * *

But, after we are all jelled, to smash the mold of our lives, just to add a new flavor or a little whipped cream of Indian-summer-romance, is taking an awfully long shot on happiness.

Correct Manners

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

Telephone Manners

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When talking over the telephone should one say, "This is Miss Smith speaking, or is it correct to say "This is Dorothy Smith speaking"? I have had several arguments with my girl friends regarding this, and we would like to know which is correct.

A READER.

What you say depends upon the person to whom you are speaking. If you are, for instance, having a business conversation, you would say, "This is Miss Smith speaking." If, too, you are asking a servant who has answered the telephone if you may speak to someone, you say "This is Miss Smith speaking, and I would like to speak with Miss Hall." But, if you are speaking to a friend, even if that friend knows you as "Miss Smith," you would say "This is Miss Dorothy Smith speaking," or just "This is Dorothy Smith." As a general rule, one leans to the side of not saying the "Miss," since one would not often refer to one's self by "Miss."

SONGS OF THREE STATES AMONG FEATURES ON RADIO

The Loudspeaker

Best Performances.
Dress Up Jazz.
Few "Hypocrites."
Those Murder Cases.

—By LOUIS REID.

NEW YORK, Oct. 13.—The organ grinder is the only dispenser of music in the land who has not yet been led to the microphones.

Louis Reid.

The best performance of Chopin's "Minute Waltz" to reach our ears was given by Alexander Brailowsky, pianist.

The best performance we ever heard of the "Tannhauser" overture was given by the Philharmonic Orchestra with Toscanini holding the stick. The most startling piece of orchestral music to tumble from the loudspeakers in the last year was the first performance by this same band with the Italian maestro conducting of Ravel's "Bolero."

Jazz Bands Called Novelty Orchestras

Broadcasters continue to use word "novelty" when they mean "jazz." Dr. Whiteman and Senor Lopez have done more to popularize jazz than any other persons in the republic.

They were the first to dress it up in spats and a cutaway and give it a reception at Carnegie and the Metropolitan. My agents inform me that Lopez is shortly to repeat on the air his famous highbrow jazz concert originally given to the grand duchy of Otto Kahn.

The best presentation of the ballad "Duna"—and what a superb blend of the gay and wistful it is—that ever penetrated our ears was given by John Charles Thomas.

Were I asked to name the best three songs to come from the mills of Jerome Kern I would select "Ol' Man River," the "Siren Song" from "Leave It to Jane" and "Who" from "Sally." Of all the hundreds of Kern tunes, "Ol' Man River" and "They Didn't Believe me," in my opinion, will endure the longest.

The colored folk of Harlem, our spies report, no longer make an ear-cupping to Ames 'n' Andy an evening ritual in their households.

It would be difficult for the sleuths of the boards of education throughout the country, were they so disposed, to find a child over the age of nine who, because of the radio, cannot distinguish between Beethoven and Berlin, Von Weber and Von Tilzer, Grieg and Gershwin.

* * *

Broadcasting, you might know, would dignify the old carnival expression, "female baritone." She is now known as "woman baritone."

I cannot summon the same enthusiasm for the Irving Berlin of "The Song is Ended" and "Blue Skies" as for the Irving Berlin of "Alexander's Ragtime Band."

"Hypocrites" Heard But Once on Radio

Only once, and no more have I heard the much-mooted word, "hypocrites" on the loudspeakers. It was uttered during a prohibition debate.

After years in the armchair arenas I have reached the conclusion that the boys at Annapolis have the most stirring marching song, just as the boys at Princeton have the most stirring alma mater chant.

I have yet to tire of the "Dance of the Hours" from "La Gioconda" or the "Nutcracker Suite" of Tschaikowsky, no matter how often they are dinned into my ears.

When television comes, the crystal gazers tell us, the fashion show will be given the greatest glorification of any phenomenon of American civilization. Maybe so. And next to the fashion show will come the parade — any parade, every parade.

Though I have waited patiently, I can tell the Anti-Saloon League that I have yet to hear on the air the raucous strains of "How Dry I Am."

The broadcasting jazz bands are thanking Allah and Tin Pan Alley for "Little White Lies." Together with "Thank Your Father" and "Sing Something Simple" it is the best of the current Broadway ballads.

While the broadcasters draw upon the files of the New York police department for material for their melodramas they neglect curiously the spectacular records of the three greatest murder trials of the last generation—the Molineux, Nan Patterson and Thaw cases.

The radio rajahs are at their busiest in seeking fifteen minute dialogue sketches, hoping by their search to attract a second stroke of the Amos 'n' Andy lightning.

We Now Present

-:- By DARRELL V. MARTIN, Radio Editor.

The gay Troubadours return to KDKA at 8:30 tonight with songs drawn from the states of Maryland, Virginia and Kentucky. We never tire of Wilfred Glenn's singing and one of his best numbers is "Clang of the Forge" for WCAE listeners at 9:30. The familiar midnight dance of skeletons in a graveyard to the fiddling of Death seated on a tombstone, as visualized in Saint-Saens' "Danse Macabre," is a part of the Minneapolis Symphony concert on WJAS at 9. . . . A new composition, "Pitt Cathedral March," inspired by the construction of Pitt's Cathedral of Learning, is on the 6:15 program of the Little German Band, KDKA. . . . Fred Rodgers sings "Betty Co-ed" for Fleetwing Band on KDKA at 8 o'clock. . . . Those who saw George Frame Brown at the Radio Show will enjoy "Real Folks" just a little bit more tonight when Bill Perkins demonstrates his new invention for the folks at Thompkins Corners. . . . Solos by Rosalie Wolfe, soprano, on WCAE at 7 include Herbert's "Personality" from "The Only Girl."

We wish to call your attention to "Moonshine and Honeysuckle" which we think one of the finest dramatic productions on the air.

Louis Mason as "Clem," the Kentuckian, is the same boy who took the part of "Louie" in Schradertown Band last winter.

INTERESTING TAILS

Dear Mr. Martin:

I was interested in your remarks about right-handed hogs.

Some years ago I attended a sale of hogs in Wisconsin. The buyer tapped certain hogs with a stick, saying: "Take that one away and that one . . .etc."

The seller became curious of this procedure and asked the buyer why he passed up certain hogs.

"Well," said the buyer, "those hogs whose tails curl to the left side are not worth a continental."

Since then when visiting a farm I always look for left-handed tail curlers and there are always some in every herd. Also I find that horses' tails turn to the left or right and do not always hang straight. One horseman told me that a horse whose tail does not hang true is not worth very much. He said animals as well as men are left-handed and right-handed.

In putting offerings to the church plate I have noticed that there are left handers and right handers and also others who have no hands at all.

Yours truly,
Robert B. Evatt.

Congratulations to Julius Huehn. He was called to New York today to accept a fellowship at the Juilliard Graduate School of Music.

Dave Olson plays four roles in the Swedish Lumberjacks over WCAE at 6:45. Dave is "Seth Parker" on Thursday night.

Tiny Charles Stratton, known as "Tom Thumb," and Jennie Lind, the "Swedish Nightingale," who toured America with P. T. Barnum in 1850, are vividly described in the Stromberg-Carlson Hour on KDKA at 10.

TODAY'S TID-BIT:

When Pat Haley returned to WTAM recently after visiting at his home in Mt. Oliver, John Harris, theatrical producer, offered him a bear cub that had been presented to him by a friend. Haley turned down the gift, saying he was satisfied to feed himself without having a healthy bear on his hands.

The Old Timer, principal character in the Empire Builder playlets, prides himself on keeping abreast of the times, but a cowhand who plays a saxophone is just too much. "Fire him," advises the Old Timer, in the playlet. Instead, Doris, the heroine, marries him. But there is a lot that happens in the meanwhile to make "The Cavalier Purple" an exceptionally interesting radio playlet.
The story begins in Montana and ends at Portland, Ore., with the Pacific International Live Stock Exposition as its background. "The Cavalier Purple" is an original story written for Empire Builders by Dan Markell, a Portland newspaper man.

Daughters Have a Way of Growing Up

WHEN Sue or Sally discard their bows and cultivate the beaux, it's time mother was looking to her furniture—especially the living room pieces. For although Sally and Sue may not speak to mother about it, wishing to spare her feelings, they fairly hate to invite a nice young man to sit in discomfort in a chamber of horrors . . . classic though those horrors may be. And there is no reason today for living with ugly or unmodish furniture. For good furniture—beautiful furniture—is lower than it has been for a decade. Here is an upholstered sofa, for example, selling on our floors at $65, which last year would have been a bargain at $95. One example—there are hundreds! 6 DEAD, 15 HURT WEEK-END AUTO TOLL

SIDEWALKS of PITTSBURGH

By William Pfarr

A few days ago there appeared in the papers this ad:

"LOST — Washing machine from delivery truck between Brighton road and East Bellevue; reward...."

This is high-class losing. Human beings have been lost, islands have been mislaid and sawmills have been stolen, but never before, if we are to believe the encyclopedias, has a full-fledged washing machine been lost.

William Pfarr

Yet the loss does not represent the height of losing. It does not affect, even if it threatens, the losing championship held by Harry Stanley, the advertising man.

Stanley won the title by losing a mattress (full-size, tufted) on the principal corner of Toronto, Canada. His was no fluke victory. He lost the mattress in broad daylight, after first borrowing said mattress from a hotel. What's more, the mattress disappeared while a policeman stood guard over it. That's all there was to it—the mattress just disappeared.

True story: When the young man from Bellevue called on his regular girl that night he had with him a box of neckties he had bought that day.

They quarreled.

The quarrel had nothing to do with the neckties, but when he departed he forgot them.

They didn't make up.

A week later she mailed him the neckties, parcel post, with this enclosure:

"You can't tie these too tight to suit me, Big Boy."

The news that a certain one-time movie star is to marry again will remind John Harris, now the head man of the Warner Brothers interests here, of the time he and the lady, whose married name was then Mrs. Flynn, happened to meet at lunch in New York. Mrs. Flynn was then at the height of her fame.

They were talking about this and that when a third person, a friend of John's who was a man of influence in the moving picture business, joined them.

"Meet Mrs. Flynn," John introduced the actress. "And," he lied, "she's very anxious to get into the moving picture business."

It so happens that the man of influence had a weakness for beautiful women—as who doesn't? He explained to the lady how difficult it was to break into the picture racket.

"But," he promised, "you drop down to my office tomorrow,

As the visitor prepared to leave, John halted him with. "Just a minute. I'd better tell you the little lady's stage name. It's Viola Dana."

All we know is what we see in the windows. Some months ago we saw an attractive sign in an attractive window in an East End street which revealed that a certain society girl, Miss Soandso, was opening a ladies' shop, if not a shoppe. The other day we passed there and we noticed the new sign—LAUNDRY.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

SANTA MONICA, Cal., Oct. 13.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

In a Sunday article I stated that the dinner party was our only cannibalism. I was wrong, as usual, for I just learned of this case crossing the divide from Utah to Colorado. In 1872 a man named Packard evidently practiced it. He was convicted in Del Norte, Col., and the judge passed sentence as follows:

Will Rogers

"Packard, you have committed the world's most fiendish crime. You not only murdered your companions, but you ate up every Democrat in Hillsdale County. You are to hang by the neck till you are dead, and may God have mercy on your Republican soul."

They live off the Democrats, but this was only one we could ever convict. Yours, WILL.

Polack Annie Is Arrested In Murder Case

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

"The Edgewater Kid," whom Polack Annie, beautiful daughter of the underworld, called her man, is killed by a machine gun planted in a window across from his room. Annie is arrested, but bailed out by Goldie Gorio, leader of Chicago's North Side gang of which the Kid was a member. Goldie's henchmen accuse Kinky King, head of the West Side gang of the murder. Gorio assures the reporters there will be no payoff. The same evening Kinky King is found murdered, a gold revolver beside him. Some four weeks preceding the murders the Kid, who had stolen Annie from Kinky King, entered The Devil's Hall, a gangster's rendezvous, and Kinky King sitting there with a blonde swore he'd get even. Later, Kinky ordered two of his men to get the Kid.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER IV.

The mayor of the sovereign city, metropolis of the Western World, sat in his throne room in City Hall. His feet relaxed on the big walnut desk of his high office. Across it, contemplating the ashes on his cigar, sat the chief of police.

"Listen here, Leo," said the mayor, "we've got to pull a pinch in this Kinky King case."

"Anything you say, Highguy," assented the chief. "Who d'you pick to take the fall?"

"I don't care. But the papers are running red this morning. After that Hannibal-King-Gorio disarmament truce, after my tall and mighty promises of no more gang war, to have this come off—they're laying me out like nobody's business. We at least have to go through the motions of kicking somebody over the jumps."

"All right. We know who settled Kinky King—Goldie Gorio!"

"What makes you so sure? Would he be fool enough to leave his gold-mounted gun behind him—he might as well have left his card."

Mayor Uneasy

Agrees With Views of Police Chief

"That's Goldie. That souvenir either means he was nowhere near the job or he did it himself. He's as likely to do the one as the other. If somebody else did it with his rod, the play was to make it look like him, which it would even if there was no direct steer that way. If he did it himself, he's shrewd and daring enough to figure that if he's copped for it we ain't strong enough to go through."

"Who says we're not? I'm the Mayor—"

"Who says you ain't? Tell me to bring in Goldie. I'll do it. And in eight hours the roof'll cave in on the both of us. You know what hook-ups he's got. You know the precinc't captains, the distric' leaders, the ward committeemen that are in with him. For what? For dough. And for what do they get their dough? P'tection. Who made you? The org'nization. Who's the org'nization? The precin't captains, the ward committeemen, the distric' leaders. Okay. Run Goldie in and run them out."

"There's something in what you say, Leo," he agreed. "There's considerable."

"There's superconsiderable. You put me in the front office because I'm no cluck. Well?"

Chief's Suggestion

Says Woman Should Be Arrested

"But—we've got to pull a pinch. We must have a tangled ram as a sacrifice. Somebody sensational enough to be Page 1. Somebody to stall it till the story's cold—when they assassinate some other gangster. Now—who?"

"If you ask me, Highguy," hoarsely whispered the Chief, "what we need is a woman."

"A woman? For what?"

"For pictures — for human int'rest — for copy — you don't want a tangled ram, you want a tangled sheep."

"Hmph—for a copper you exhibit unusual intelligence. Sounds right. Now, where do we get this female?"

"Polack Annie!"

"Who? What's her line? Who'd she ever kill?"

"Nobody that I ever know of. But she had at least two good men killed—the Edgewater Kid and Kinky King. She's a red-headed hunk o' dynamite, she pictures like a house afire, and she was King's sweetie, blew him for the Kid, and was sprung yest'day by Goldie Gorio. Want any better dovetail than that?"

"Gee, that's hot. Is it all copesettee?"

"They found a gold lipstick tube with the gun, didn't they?"

"So I read."

"So I'm telling you. I've got it in my desk. Well, the gat was Goldie's — that's six-two-and-even. But that lipstick! Goldie don't make up his lips, does he? It's most likely the lipstick had nothing to do with the murder at all. Kinky had dames running in and out all hours of the day like it was a grocery store. But you can't laugh off that lipstick at that, can you?"

Decide on Annie

Mayor Consents to Her Arrest

"H'h—n-no. It wasn't Kinky's, that's clear."

"Play that across the board. It's got a trade-mark on it, too. There's maybe a million like it in town—but it'll photograph—the papers'll hop to it—big clue business—who was the owner of the dainty lipstick?—when that is cleared up, the slayer of the West Side rum-runner baron will be known!—now, how can we throw 'em a man? Do you follow me—or do you?"

"Leo, I do. This should go over like Republican prosperity propaganda."

"Bank on it, Highguy. She's the Helen o' Troy behind this whole war. If she isn't in it up to her good-looking neck, she knows the inside, just the same. About her we probably won't get a squawk from the party boys. And Goldie'll know we can never convict her, so he won't stir up too much hell. It'll intrigue the papers. They've never got a good snapshot of Annie. I'll make her stand for photos if I have to have three cops hold her. She's good for two or three days. By that time somebody'll prob'ly lay out Goldie, and by the time that funeral is over, Kinky King'll be last Winter's snow. Oke?"

"A sweet pea, Leo. Go to it."

"I'll have her brought in before yonder sun sets over the West Side," smiled the Chief. "When the City Hall reporters come in, tell 'em we're on a lead and promise an important arrest before evening. I'll make

'PICKED PASTOR' CHARGE STIRS LUTHERANS

Wittenberg College Head Fights Attack Made on Education Committees

By THE REV. L. W. RUPP,
Special Correspondent.

(The Rev. Mr. Rupp will write daily exclusive dispatches for the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, featuring those highlights of special interest to Pittsburgh district Lutherans during the sixth biennial convention of the United Lutheran Church now being held in Milwaukee.)

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Oct. 13.—A charge by an unnamed delegate to the convention of the United Lutheran Church, that church education committees seek "hand picked ministers" met with opposition from Dr. Edgar Tulloss, president of Wittenberg College of Springfield, O.

The charge was made during debate on an ultra-personal questionnaire given applicants for scholarships and church financial aid in studying for the ministry.

Dr. Tulloss said that the large sums available for such loans "are not the money of one person but represents the sacrifices of many persons throughout the church and we owe it to them to investigate thoroughly everyone who would borrow from or use these monies."

Assignments of Pittsburgh ministers to preach for the day in Milwaukee churches were:

The Rev. G. E. Swoyer, pastor of the Mt. Zion Lutheran Church, Perrysville avenue and Waldorf street, North Side, preached in the Church of the Incarnation, Milwaukee; the Rev. A. J. Hill, pastor of the First Lutheran Church, Grant street, preached in the Bay Shore Lutheran Church, and the Rev. Dr. Ellis B. Burgess, until recently president of the Pittsburgh synod, preached in the Church of the Redeemer.

Although Glassport police said the shooting was accidental, County Detective James Reddington reported that Case met his wife and two children, Albert, Jr., 19, and Margaret, 17, with a rifle when they returned from a dance.

Mrs. Case told Reddington that she and her children had planned attending the dance with the families of her husband's brothers, and that they went despite the husband's objection.

A quarrel between Case and his wife in the hall of their home preceded the shooting, detectives asserted.

FISH OWE LIVES TO TECH GIRLS

Hundreds of goldfish, swimming their lives away in the lily pond that fronts the Westinghouse Memorial, may not know it, but they can be grateful to a group of Carnegie Tech girls for their daily rations.

Today and every day, these students take graham, whole-wheat bread or buns from the school's cafeteria and journey to the pond. The girls are rewarded by the fun of watching the fish fight for the crumbs. There's pushing and snapping as they seek to satisfy their ravenous appetites.

The girls have been carrying on this self-imposed duty for the past week. They chanced to overhear a visitor remark that with $200,000 invested in the memorial, no provisions had been made to feed the little fish that give added attraction to the scene.

SEEK 2 GIRLS IN RING THEFT

Canadian and New York authorities today were asked by Pittsburgh detectives to search for two young women who, representing themselves as co-eds, robbed Patrick Collier, a corporation representative of Cleveland, of a $4,500 diamond ring after he and a friend had taken the girls on a round of cabarets, according to detectives.

A $250 reward was offered by Collier for the return of the ring and capture of the two girls, whose names were broadcast as Bertha Berthold, 23, and Gladys Fellows, 27, according to Collier's report to detectives.

Relating the theft to the detectives, Collier said he and his friend, whose identity was not disclosed, had been driving downtown Friday afternoon when they encountered the girls, also driving.

Their flirtation was followed by a dinner engagement and the tour of cabarets. Collier said $100 of his friend's money also was taken.

RADIO PROJECT GAINS SUPPORT

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—The congressional program for the short session is largely a matter of conjecture, but one issue certain to be in the forefront of discussion and possible action is the broadcasting of proceedings of the Senate and House of Representatives.

The campaign launched by the Hearst Radio Service in co-operation with the Washington Herald, to lift the barriers on congressional broadcasting, has already aroused debate among congressmen and caused lines of support and opposition to form.

Congressional sessions conducted within the hearing of all the citizens of the country who wish to listen in, is the goal in the campaign.

The first gun in the campaign for congressional broadcasting was fired by a woman, Mrs. Eleanor Patterson, editor of the Washington Herald.

Hearst Radio Service, in asking public support of the campaign, has asked citizens to write their opinions of congressional broadcasting, addressing Hearst Radio Service in care of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

Knows Gangsters
Some Keep on Good Side Of Police

"Grand, Leo. Let's not have any kickbacks."

"How did I get to be the Chief? I s'pose I'm dumb. How'd I find out about the Kid and Kinky and Annie? I know somethin'. Highguy, I got many a stool-pigeon in the gangs. They stick—oh, of course. They stick. But they still know there's police. And a few o' the rats want to be in right with me—just in case of—get me?"

"Uhu . . . Sure you can pick up this Annie?"

"Anybody could — I mean, easy. She could hide like a purple rhinoceros. I'll go out and nip her myself—in person. That will make it more important. And then I'll know it's done right. I'll phone and let you know."

"Leo—I guess I pick a mean chief of police!"

"H'lo, Annie," said the Chief.

"I—who are you?"

"Don't get hot and bothered, Annie—nobody much—just the chief of police."

"Oh—and what could you possibly want with me?"

Annie Arrested
Isn't Allowed to Make 'Phone Call

"Possibly? I could possibly want to take you to the park and let you look at the lions on the Art Museum, or could possibly want to give you a spin and let you see our marvelous boulevard system and our perfect traffic operation, or I could possibly want to spoon with you in the moonlight on the outer drive near the illuminated monument, or I could possibly want to show you where the tunnel caved in. But I possibly don't. I possibly want to reveal to you the splendid hospitality of central station."

"Is—is that a depot?"

"Oh, yes. But you don't leave from there for any place in particular. You get a ticket, but you don't pay for it—not in advance, anyways. You go through an iron gate, but a bluecap is with you instead of a redcap. You—"

"You mean I'm under arrest?"

"Oh, not quite as harsh as all that. You're going bye-bye with Uncle Leo. Put on your little tin hat, Annie. Uncle's busy."

"But—what have I done? What am I charged with?"

"I don't know what you're charged with—prob'ly heroin. As for what you've done, it wasn't so bad—any nice girl might have forgot herself and done the same thing."

"What?"

"Oh—only murder! Where were you when Kinky took it in the belly?"

Annie staggered back on her high heels.

"I—what are you tryin' to get acrost? You're slippin' me the rap on that Kinky King killin'? Me?"

"I don't mean your cousin Sophie. C'mon—button up your overcoat, you belong to me."

"J-just a minnit—I want to 'phone."

"Goldie Gorio? He'll be hepped soon enough."

"N-no. My lawyer."

"Don't be a clown. I'll grab you by the back o' your neck and the seat o' your—I can take you so far and bury you so deep that sixty-four lawyers won't dig you up in sixty-five days. But behave and you'll get a square shake. I'll book you day after tomorrow, and then your mouthpiece can get you all the hebeases corpuses that they got printed blanks to fill out for. Right now, though, you're callin' up nobody."

Uses Force
Chief Carries Her to His Machine

Annie shot him a quick slant out of the corner of one blue eye and made a dash for the 'phone. The Chief wrenched it from her hands and tore the wires out of the wall with one powerful jerk, and flung the dead instrument into a corner.

"Shake it up," he ordered. "I don' want to get rough."

"Not very rough," she panted. "I'm entitled to advice of counsel——"

"Bottle it. You're comin' with me—and you're comin' now—do you go out on your own power, or do I take you out in a basket?"

"One second—have you got a warrant?"

"Oh, what's the use?" despaired the Chief. He rushed at her, threw one arm around her neck and the other under her knees—and half a minute later Polack Annie, clawing and profaning and struggling and threatening, was dumped into the Chief's sedan; a door boomed shut, and she felt the vehicle under way.

"Now, I don't want to bop you one on the beezer, because you'll look terrible when the newspapers shoot your mug," said the Chief. "So behave yourself, Annie."

"You win, Chief," she answered. "But I'll break you for this if it's the last thing I ever do."

"You try it—and that will be the last thing you'll ever do," he responded, reaching for a fresh cigar and a match.

Streets and buildings of the borough have been decorated for the week's festivities. Several notables will be guests at the gatherings, while hundreds of former residents will visit the town, some coming from as far as the Pacific Coast.

A parade in which 20 bugle and drum corps from adjacent communities will participate will feature the program tomorrow. Old timers' night will take place Wednesday in the Elks' Temple, Ninth avenue; old residents will be honor guests at a banquet in the temple Thursday night; a parade will be held Friday afternoon followed by banquets in the Elks, Turners, Sokol and Russian halls.

BLAZE REVEALS STILL IN HOME

Ross Township police and highway patrolmen today were searching for members of two families they wish to question concerning a fire and subsequent discovery of a still in a residence at 30 East Forest avenue, Ross Township yesterday morning. The frame dwelling was damaged $1,000, volunteer firemen reported.

Patrolman Charles Deer, of Ross Township has made information against Adolph Tetmyer, owner of the dwelling. Tetmyer, his wife and two sons, William, 10, and Edward, 8, have been missing since the fire. The wife and children were absent when the fire occurred and Tetmyer is believed to have been in the residence alone.

The other family which occupied part of the house is believed to have been visiting over the week-end. Corp. Larry Moore, in charge of the local highway patrol detail, destroyed six barrels of mash found in the house. The 50-gallon still along with a quantity of liquor was found on the third floor. Township police are holding the liquor and still.

The Camera Question Box

The Sun-Telegraph's "Camera Question Box" each day will ask a question of public interest to Pittsburghers, and will photograph those interviewed.

Today's question: The home has been called "the backbone of society." Does this still hold true?

MISS HELEN BUCK, North Side, dancer—I think this still holds true. The home is the backbone of society, because on the production of the home, the family, all society depends. A child's character is formed within the shelter of his earlier years.

MISS EDNA MAE BUCK, North Side, entertainer — The training that we receive at home is the first and most influential of any that we may receive throughout our entire lives. If this is not the backbone of society, then—I would say that there is no such thing.

Miss E. M. Buck

JAMES WELSH, North Side, clerk—Home life is, indeed, the backbone and the foundation of all society. If there were no home there would be no society. This thought is enough in itself to convince anyone that the home is not only society's greatest influence, but is essential to it.

Mr. Welsh

ROY ASHWORTH, North Side, chauffeur—Everything depends on something; society depends on the family circle or the home. I believe that the home is, was, and always will be "the backbone of society."

Mr. Ashworth

MISS MARY BISHOP, New Brighton, teacher—The mother is the center of home life; and who has a greater influence on a child than his mother? What the child learns within the portals of home will influence not only himself, but each person with whom he comes in contact. These individuals make up society.

Miss Bishop

MISS DOROTHY COENE, New Brighton, teacher—The family group was the original society. All others followed from this and depend on this. The roots of society are planted in the home; from it, come the influences and the stimuli. The family is, without doubt, the backbone of society.

Miss Coene

Harmar Man Shot in Arm by Fleeing Robbers; 3 Thugs Beat Storage Watchman

Police and detectives were scouring the Pittsburgh district today for robbers who Saturday night and yesterday staged one safe robbery, 10 holdups, in one of which a man was shot, and escaped with more than $1,000 loot.

Robbers shortly after 2 a. m. today broke off the combination of the safe in the office of the Consolidated Ice Company plant, West North avenue and Rope alley, North Side, and escaped with $368. They overlooked $300.

SHOT BY BANDITS

Rudolph Neidecker, 42, of Guy's Run road, Harmar Township, was shot in the arm when he attempted to halt the escape of two highwaymen who held up Earl Smith, 25, of 6 Morris Camp Grounds, Oakmont, and a woman companion near Neidecker's home. The thugs escaped with $30 and a watch. Oakmont police were informed.

Meredith Kerr, 24, a Penn Township farmer, was slugged when he attempted to get the license number of the car used by two thugs who held up Kerr and a woman companion in the Puckety Creek road, Plum Township.

A score of store stickups and as many automobile thefts were cleared, police said, with the arrest of six South Side youths. Two arrested Saturday in Sawmill Run boulevard in an automobile, which bore a stolen license plate, gave their names as John Eglar, 21, of 3102 Mission street, and John Shaffer, 22, of 65 Barry street.

Early yesterday morning four other youths were arrested in a house at 510 Arch street, where, police said, they found a suitcase containing four 38-caliber revolvers. Those arrested, according to police, were Leo Kulesik, 19, of 47 Barry street; his brother, Albert, 20; Casmer Shorzewski, 23, of Sarah street, and Joseph Skarupa, 22, of 2504 Josephine street. Eglar and Shaffer were said to have implicated the four in the robberies.

Carl Engstron, 65, of 1129 Bluff street, a night watchman at the Shanahan Transfer and Storage Company, at Magee and Bluff streets, was recovering today from bruises inflicted by three thugs who invaded the company's warehouse early yesterday. Engstron told police he was beaten and robbed of $65 when he refused to give the trio a quarter.

Seven hundred dollars was the loot of two armed men who held up six men working near the DJ tower of the Pittsburgh and West Virginia Railroad Friday, according to reports received by police yesterday. The section gang was at work when the bandit pair confronted them with revolvers.

Two thugs in a stolen automobile robbed three pedestrians and slugged the fourth when he resisted yesterday.

When A. C. Zimmer, of 3422 Bates street, resisted the bandits in McKee place, he was struck on the head with a blackjack.

Three footpads slugged and robbed Albert Summers, of 718 Brushton avenue, of a watch valued at $60 and $1.50 in cash at Monticello and Collier streets. The same three, police believe, robbed G. L. Graham, a taxicab driver, of 5806 Black street, of $14 at Morningside and Stanton avenues.

John Magill, 25, of Colmers street, one of two men alleged to have robbed two girl payroll clerks of $843 in checks and cash Saturday at Penn avenue and Twenty-ninth street, was held for court by Magistrate John McNamara in the Penn Avenue Police Court yesterday.

Collier Township police today were investigating the recovery of an automobile from 16 feet of water in a pond on the C. P. Mayer estate, near Bridgeville. The machine was discovered yesterday by Walter Selecky and Louis Petronski, both 14, of Presto.

The automobile, bearing Pennsylvania license plates KD 972, was dragged ashore after volunteers worked 10 hours to lift it. They were aided by Harry Panner and Ray Goldbach, who dived under the machine and attached tackle. The car was pulled out by a motor truck.

Pittsburgh police said the car was reported stolen by its owner, Louis Murgel, of 734 Mill street, Bridgeville, February 26.

The pond formerly was a surface coal mine, which was abandoned a decade ago. The pool was dragged to learn if anybody had been drowned.

Dr. Katherine Dewey Tells What German University Women Are Achieving

The significant place women now hold in the life of her native land was described to the American Association of University Women by Dr. Katherine Dewey, of Danzig, Germany, on Saturday. Dr. Dewey, who is spending two years in the research department of dental histology at the University of Pittsburgh, has just returned from a trip to Germany where she attended the ninety-first conference of German National Scientists and Physicians at Koenigsburg.

At the request of Mrs. R. C. McKelvey, president of the Pittsburgh branch, A. A. U. W., Dr. Dewey made a point of observing what opportunities are open to college women in Germany and it was the results of her observations that she gave the members on Saturday afternoon.

German men are reconciled to finding women in all professions and treat them as equals. There are 39 women in the Reichstag, a greater number than in any other European parliament, and the study of political economy is very much in vogue, she said. In medicine a woman has the same chance as a man and in the large cities there are special opportunities in sickness insurance to which every working man and woman must subscribe. A dentist in Germany, Dr. Dewey said, is only a technician and does laboratory work only, the Germans having a name of their own for those who work with the patients.

Theology, she said, is the only field in which women are not given full privileges, although 12 have passed the examinations and have charges (as assistant pastors), but are not permitted to preach nor to administer the sacrament. This attitude, however, is changing, since so many men are not entering the theological seminaries.

The meeting which Dr. Dewey addressed was held in the Woman's City Club and the program included piano solos beautifully played by Mrs. O. E. Riser. The Pittsburgh branch of the A. A. U. W. is now the third largest in the United States, having 400 active and 50 associate members, outnumbered only by Philadelphia and Boston. Eighty new members have just been acquired in the local unit's part in the attainment of a national membership of 50,000 by 1931, when the half-century of continuous life will have been marked by the association, but under different names. There are branches now in Europe and Asia.

B. P. W. Meeting

The afternoon session will consist of roundtables on various subjects and there will be reports from the national executive meeting and the goodwill European tours of the summer.

NEW WOOLEN ENSEMBLES HELD AS IDEAL TRAVELING COSTUME

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, Oct. 13.—Some clothes like some people are destined to see the world and find themselves at home in whatever corner of the globe they may chance to be. And to successfully do that, both people and clothes must be adaptable. Adaptability is an attribute that cannot be too much stressed in clothes designed for travel wear.

Such clothes must be at home on a ship or train, in a small wayside inn or a cosmopolitan hotel. They must retain their freshness and jaunty appearance at the end of even the most trying journey and above all they must be light and comfortable. The two or three piece ensemble is ideal for travel wear with a top coat of tweed simply made but effectively trimmed with a good flat fur. If it is to be a two-piece ensemble then a simply cut frock of wool crepe to match the coat or its trimming would be ideal. Avoid lingerie touches on the frock when traveling, as such showy details cannot be expected to remain in their pristine state for very long. The three-piece ensemble uses a jumper blouse of hand-knit wool matching either the coat or its fur. It is worn with a skirt that matches in tone the main hue of the coat but is sometimes of a lighter weight of tweed than the coat. With such an outfit and harmonious accessories, and above all an utter absence of costume jewelry be it ever so sporty—behold the ideal travel costume!

TO ILLUSTRATE forcibly the above remarks we are sending two sketches of a splendid ensemble ideal for both town, country and travel wear. It is by the clever Schiaparelli who specializes in outfits of this type. The coat is of heavy tweed with a diagonal pattern in brown and white and a wide collar and cuffs of unplucked beaver. The sleeves are set into extremely wide armholes, a detail that is contributive to ease and comfort.

* * *

WORN WITH THE COAT just described is a jumper-blouse of heavy hand-knit wool in greige matching the tone of the fur on the coat and bordered in dark brown. The accompanying skirt is of dark brown one-toned tweed matching the domihant shade of the coat mixture. It is stitched along the lower edge. Details contributing to the smartness of this outfit include a brown, white and greige scarf which is tucked in at the neckline, and a belt of brown leather.

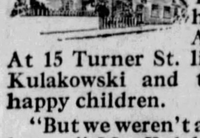
Mother of Twelve Regains Health

Salem woman gives credit to Vegetable Compound



HAWTHORNE'S House of Seven Gables is situated at the end of Turner Street overlooking Salem harbor. This historic neighborhood is now a Polish-American district. At 15 Turner St. live Mr. & Mrs. R. J. Kulakowski and their twelve healthy, happy children.

"But we weren't always happy," Mr. Kulakowski confided. "My wife was ailing for five years. First she seemed just tired and run down. Then she got weaker and weaker and became so crippled that we had to carry her from room to room. When I came home from work, I would find her crawling on her hands and knees. I was a motorman then on the Salem to Boston cars. One day I was telling my conductor about my wife and he suggested Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Said it had helped his sister. Well, I got a bottle and she started taking it. We kept on until she took about eight bottles in all. By that time she was up on her feet and doing her work."

Mrs. Kulakowski's twelfth child was born on Easter Monday. "I have never lost a child," she says, "and none of them has ever been seriously ill. My oldest daughter is now in her teens, and I am giving her the Vegetable Compound, too."

Secret of Lively Ball. Ban Johnson Reveals It. Scott for Red Sox Post. | Early Football Upsets. Star Runners Stopped. Carnegie Looks Mighty.

RABBIT PILL DEVISED TO BOOST RUTH

THE INSIDE STORY of how, when and why the lively ball was brought into the major leagues, with the result that absurdly big scores are piled up in many games during a season and home-run hitting has become a farce, has been unfolded at last. It comes from Ban Johnson, founder and former president of the American League. In giving the information to Joe Vila, veteran baseball man of New York, Johnson confirmed the surmise of many fans as to the object the magnates had in view when they introduced the rabbit pill that has done more to hurt the diamond game than to help it.

Ban Johnson

That object was first, on the part of the American League, to realize on the possibilities they saw in Babe Ruth by swelling his home run figures to such sensational proportions as to make him a great gate attraction, and next, on the part of the National League, to build up home run hitters of its own in order to counteract the influence that Ruth's slugging might have in drawing the greater part of public attention and patronage to the rival circuit.

JOHNSON SAYS THE baseball manufacturers and major league officials who assert the ball now in use is no livelier than that of 15 years ago are only trying to spoof the fans. He relates that up to the end of the season of 1919 the ball contained a cork center about the size of a walnut, wound with a certain amount of rubber.

In order to put more life in the sphere, according to Ban, the size of the cork center was reduced to that of a Mexican bean, and the rubber winding was increased to about twice its original thickness. Later the leather covering was changed, and it is well known that only this year this covering was made even thicker with the idea of slowing up the ball but which served instead to make it livelier than ever.

JOHNSON RECALLS THAT when Ruth played for the Red Sox in 1919 he knocked out 29 home runs. That gave the American League chiefs an idea, and when the Bambino was sold to the Yankees at the end of that season for $137,500 they set about to make him the biggest attraction in baseball.

Babe Ruth

They put the idea into execution by changing the construction of the American League's official ball, so that Ruth, through his abnormal driving power, would be able to pole so many more homers that he would become the talk of the country and boost the receipts at every park in the circuit.

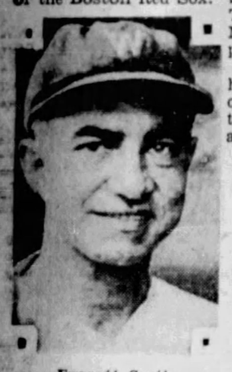
"RUTH IN 1920 WAS a batting sensation as a result," Johnson says. "He made 54 home runs, a new world record, and became the greatest drawing card in the game. Other American League batters increased their averages in consequence of this secret change in the ball. In 1921, the National League, anxious to have a slugger like Ruth, also altered its official ball for that purpose. Since then, with one or two exceptions, the National annually has surpassed the American in total home runs. The goal was reached this year, when Hack Wilson outhomered Ruth, 56 to 49. If the leagues do not abolish the present ball, home-run hitting is bound to hurt the game."

CALLING ATTENTION TO the fact that the two big leagues turned in the record-breaking total of 1,565 home runs this year, 215 more than in 1929, Johnson says he will admit that many homers are due to short stands and fences, but adds that the ball is hit through the infield with greater momentum than in the old days and travels a far greater distance when hit on the fly.

"Because of the lively ball and abnormal hitting the game has lost many of its attractive features," he says. "Base-stealing, sacrifice hitting, teamwork at bat and long-distance throwing no longer are important factors. But the magnates can eliminate these evils by going back to first principles and instructing the manufacturers to produce the kind of ball that was used for almost 20 years in the American League and even longer in the National."

GUESSING CONTINUES AS to the identity of the new manager of the Boston Red Sox. Since the elimination of Joe McCarthy and Ty Cobb, rumor has named Steve O'Neill, Muddy Ruel and several others among the possibilities.

Latest reports mention Everett Scott as having a chance for the job. Scott has been out of the game for some time but is thought to have the makings of a successful manager.



Everett Scott

BESIDES, SCOTT IS popular in Boston. That city was the scene of his first appearance as a big leaguer, as he went to the Red Sox from the Youngstown (O.) club, of the Central League, after the season of 1912. He was farmed to St. Paul in 1913, but returned to the Red Sox the following year and played shortstop for that club for eight seasons, or until the end of the campaign of 1921, when he was traded to the Yankees with Joe Bush and Sam Jones for Roger Peckinpaugh, Jack Quinn, Rip Collins, Herb Thormahlen and Bill Piercy. Scott wore a Boston uniform in the first 832 of the 1,307 games in which he established the present world record for consecutive play.

THE LIST OF football teams not defeated nor tied is being pared down faster than usual this season. Already, Yale, Princton, Navy, Lafayette, Purdue, Ohio State, Chicago, Nebraska, California and Southern California have been defeated (both California and Southern California losing to the new coast sensation, Washington State), and Stanford and Minnesota are among those that have been tied.

In the entire East there remain only 26 teams that have not been defeated nor tied, and only half of these boast uncrossed goal lines. The early stopping of prominent elevens extends also to individual players. Savoldi, Eyth and a few others have started out in brilliant fashion, but Booth, James, Yunevich and more who had been ex-

Abolishment of Net Ranking List Asked

BERLIN, Oct. 13.—(AP.)—An appeal to abolish the national ranking list was made today to the president of the German Tennis Association by Germany's 12 best women tennis players, with the exception of the young star, Cecilie Aussem.

Among the many reasons given for the request were charges that it is injurious to German tennis, deprives the players of pleasure in the sport, endangers comradeship and hampers development of skill.

NATIONAL GOLF EVENT OPENS ON COAST

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 13.—(AP.)—Eager for the start of the women's National championship competition today, all except a few of 100 feminine golfers spent yesterday resting and making final preparations for the six-day grind.

Marion Hollins, Santa Cruz, Cal., and 1921 National champion, turned in a card of 38-42——80, one under women's par. She came to the sixteenth hole with three 4s and a 74 and a new course record, but took an 8 on the sixteenth when her ball found an unplayable lie.

Edith Quier, of Reading, Pa., who has been shooting consistently in the low 80s, equaled par with an 81. Both are considered threats to the championship crown won four times by Glenna Collett, of New York City.

Maureen Orcutt, of New York, the Canadian women's champion, and Mrs. O. Hill, of Kansas City, 1929 Western women's champion, and Peggy Wattles, of Buffalo, had 83s. Mrs. Harley Higbie, of Detroit shot an 86.

While yesterday was by mutual consent a day of rest, several of the women went to the course for a few final shots before the tournament gets under way. Failure to get under the par barrier was responsible for the activity on the course.

It was considered probable scores in the low nineties would prove sufficient to make the qualifying list of 32 for tomorrow's first round of match play.

DAVE M'KAY GOLF VICTOR

WHEELING, W. Va., Oct. 13.—(AP.)—Dave McKay, Pittsburgh Field Club pro, won the tri-state invitation golf tournament here yesterday, his 67 being good enough to defeat a field of 40 professionals from West Virginia, Western Pennsylvania and Eastern Ohio.

P. O. Hart, Marietta, O.; C. Weightman, Portsmouth, O., and Fred Baroni, of Stanton Heights, Pittsburgh, finished in a deadlock two strokes behind the winner. Next came Al Alcroft, Youngstown, and Leo Shea, Wheeling, with 70s.

Other scores included: Archie Hambrick, Elkins, 72; Gene Heaney, Cambridge, O., 75; Horace Brand, Uniontown, 76; Nelson Zimmerman, Wildwood, 78; Jack Kennedy, Fox Chapel, 78; Walter Johnston, Butler, 79, and Vincent Eldred, of Highland, 81.

HOOD —Harty lost his legs in a railroad accident when he was but a boy, and was forced to rely solely upon his arms for locomotion. Consequently his arms have become abnormally strong, and he moves about with comparative ease. In September, 1917, he climbed to the summit of Mount Hood without assistance, beating all the other climbers in his party. Recently he was heralded as a hero in Portland, Oregon, his home town, when he rescued a drowning boy from the Tualatin River.

EYTH NEAR TOP IN SCORING

NEW YORK, Oct. 13.—(AP.)—Andy Kerr's mighty Colgate array has jumped into the lead in the race for Eastern scoring honors with 178 points in three games. Closely pressing the Maroons are Cornell, with 174, and Dartmouth, with 173 points, respectively.

Of the 26 unbeaten and untied teams in the East, 13 boast uncrossed goal lines, Colgate and Dartmouth being among them.

Although Colgate heads the scoring table, Fordham has compiled the best average, with 144 points in two games, or 72 per game.

Although Jim Murphy, of Fordham, has played in only two games while most of his rivals have been out three times, he leads the ball carriers of the East in scoring. Murphy has a total of 54 points to lead Wabbles Hewitt, of Columbia, by 1. Eyth, of Carnegie Tech, and Viviano, of Cornell, are tied for third place with 48 each.

Al Simmons Ends Game, Hits Last Ball for Homer

MILWAUKEE, Oct. 13.—(AP.)—While Al Simmons has broken up several ball games, he never has done it in just this way:

In an exhibition game here with George Earnshaw and Jimmy Foxx, fellow Philadelphia World Series-winning team members, yesterday, Simmons came to bat. The score was 13 to 6 in favor of the team for which Foxx was then pitching. Simmons ended the ball game—completely—by lifting one of Foxx's tosses out of the park and a block away.

It was the last available baseball. Search of nearby drugstores failed to reveal even a kid's ball, and of course the sporting goods stores were closed.

HUNT PROGRAM ON TODAY

The steeplechase races and one flat race make up the program which is to be offered at the fifth annual Western Pennsylvania hunts race meeting, to be staged at "Huntlands," the farm of George R. McNary, New Alexandria, at 3 o'clock this afternoon.

The steeplechase events, for gentleman riders, have attracted entries from the five recognized Western Pennsylvania hunt clubs, Rolling Rock, Pittsburgh, Sewickley, Westmoreland and Indiana.

The first race is to be the Westmoreland Cup steeplechase for West Penn hunters, over a course of one and one-half miles, to be ridden in hunt uniform.

The second event, the Western Pennsylvania challenge cup, will be raced over a course of 3½ miles over post and rail. Merry Widow, 1929 winner, to be ridden by James C. Hamilton, tops a field of seven entries in this event.

The Greensburg Driving Club cup, the third race on the card, is to be two miles over brush.

Blue Ribbon Horses Add to Laurels

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 13.—(AP.)—The invincible St. Mesrob and Peter Handsome, the greatest blue-ribbon horses in all the history of the show ring, won still another victory in the St. Louis National Horse Show yesterday.

They were paired in the road-ster class, and their speed and dashing action kept the 14,000 spectators shouting. They are owned by George P. Peak, Winchester, Ill.

St. Mesrob now has won more than 900 blue ribbons, and Peter Handsome has won more than 500.

Coach Alexander Praises Plaid as Great Eleven

When a team gets beat, 31 to 0, it is difficult for the losing coach to write the story.

Georgia Tech came to Pittsburgh thinking that it possibly had an outside chance to win from the veterans of Carnegie. Georgia Tech left Pittsburgh with an idea that Carnegie Tech is as good a football team as we ever have played.

The story of the game is the fact that the Plaid players charged better, blocked better, tackled better and started faster than their opponents. Penalties for holding and offside undoubtedly prevented another touchdown. Carnegie will do well to correct this before its game with Notre Dame, as it may prove fatal to its chances.

Bill Alexander

PASS FOOLS GEORGIA

The first touchdown was a beautiful 40-yard pass from McCurdy to Kavel that completely fooled the Georgia Tech defense. Highberger made the fourth touchdown in the third quarter on a fine individual block of a punt. On the play he tossed aside the Georgia Tech blocker as if he had been chaff.

McCurdy is an ideal quarterback. He mixes in straight line plays and end runs with reverses and double reverses at precisely the right moment. In addition, he is the best passer I have seen in a couple of years.

Karcis is a bull both on offense and defense. When he hits them they stay put for a few plays. Coach Steffen in addition to his well-rounded running and forward-passing attack perfected a very fine lateral pass attack that will cause all opponents trouble.

VISITORS' STARS HURT

For Georgia Tech, Sam Colvin, a sub-quarterback, played a fine, heady game both on offense and defense. Speer and Maree at tackles, Jones at end and Brooke at guard tried desperately and never quit, but made the mistake of trying to cover more territory than their jobs call for. Strickland, at fullback, also performed satisfactorily.

Georgia Tech was unfortunate in losing Captain Dunlap and Halfback Graydon in the first half. Both received knee sprains from the hard-blocking Carnegie backs and ends. This deprived the Georgians of their experienced punters and put an extra burden on the other backs. The game was well officiated and clean and the losers have only the regret that they might have held the score to three touchdowns. Watch Carnegie the remainder of the year, for it is apt to be the big noise.

DUKES TO PLAY IRISH 'B' TEAM

Elmer Layden, former fullback of the Four Horsemen of Notre Dame and now head coach at Duquesne University, has opened gridiron relations with his alma mater. The Duquesne University frosh, who have run up victories over Bellefonte Academy and Potomac State College under the able tutelage of Freshmen Coach Buff Donnelli, will meet the Notre Dame "B" team at Forbes Field on Saturday night.

Arrangements for the Notre Dame-Duquesne game were concluded at South Bend., Ind., on Saturday, when Layden and Rockne got together before the Notre Dame-Navy game. The contest had been contemplated for some time, and when Layden brought his varsity from Chicago following a victory over Loyola University the night before, the agreement was signed. It is not the first time that Notre Dame and the Dukes have met in athletic competition, since they clashed on the tennis courts in 1928 and the Dukes sent track representatives in 1929.

Wheeling Enters National Floor League

CANTON, Oct. 13.—(AP.)—Wheeling, W. Va., yesterday was given a franchise in the reorganized National Basketball League.

Cincinnati and Akron are the other new members and Columbus, Dayton and Canton are holdovers. It is the first league venture for Wheeling and Cincinnati. Toledo, champion last year, now is in the American League. The National League re-elected Carl C. Storck, Detroit, as president.

NOTRE DAME NEXT FOE OF SKIBOS

By JESS CARVER.

The gall and wormwood highballs served Saturday afternoon over a none-too-restricted area put many an ache in the intercollegiate gridiron coco. Week-end happenings, when half a dozen or more good football teams were tumbled into the discard or found themselves jammed up in totally unexpected ties, indicated that the 1930 gridiron season is here to stay.

Any lingering doubts that may have existed previous to Saturday that there is not a football team on the Eastern edge of Panther Hollow were wiped away Saturday in great swipes as Carnegie Tech's rampaging Tartans bowled over the Yellow Jackets of Georgia Tech. Ramblin' wrecks they were for fair, those Jackets, as they headed back to Atlanta. Tech didn't fool for a moment, as it went to work on the vaunted Yellow Jacket line, and crossed up and bewildered the secondary defense. The Scotch brig carried entirely too many guns for the Engineers of the South; and trained those guns on the most vulnerable parts of the Jacket defense.

FAVORITES WIN

Carnegie, Notre Dame, Dartmouth, Colgate, Penn State, New York University, Syracuse and Northwestern turned in impressive triumphs Saturday. Pitt won by a lop-sided count in Cleveland, but faced tepid and extremely minor league opposition in Western Reserve. Other of the larger Eastern and Middle Western institutions of learning who go in for football in a big way landed victories against hit-or-miss opposition, mostly the latter.

The boys who are holding their heads today and wondering if many were killed as the roof fell in at Southern California (Loud huzzahs from the direction of Pitt and Tech), Stanford, Purdue, Yale, Nebraska and Wash.-Jeff. Things happened and happened fast as these elevens were either beaten or tied.

Southern California was served a hint as to the strength of Washington State as the Staters landed on California a week ago, but certain it is that Washington wasn't doped to beat the Trojans. This they did, and are now chasing along at the head of the West Coast Conference race.

POP HELD TO TIE

Pop Warner figured he had one in the old sack in Minnesota, but a great Gopher line, which played inspired football, held Pop's Cardinals to a scoreless deadlock and saved the honor of the Association of Those Opposed to West Coast Football for another week.

Purdue, Big Ten champion, was a choice to take Michigan, tied last week by Michigan State, but, lo and behold, the Wolverines cut some fancy capers as they edged out a 14-13 triumph. Princeton had hoped to break the Brown Bear spell, but the Bruins of Tus McLaughry made it two in a row with a 7-0 victory. Georgia outlasted Yale in a nightmare contest of fumbling. Oklahoma shocked the sensibilities of Nebraska's Cornhuskers by trimming 'em in very decisive manner.

Springfield, O., went goofy Saturday night celebrating Wittenberg's 7-7 tie with Wash-Jeff. A year ago the Presidents had the heck of a time nicking the Lutherans, 15-0, but Saturday they had as hard a time holding 'em even.

West Virginia rallied right nobly after the kicking around served up by Pitt, taking Washington and Lee with comparative ease. Waynesburg showed signs of awakening by holding the strong St. Bonaventure machine to a 14-6 count. St. Vincent lost to St. Thomas and Allegheny nosed out

Tipton, Kentucky Sportsman, Dies

LEXINGTON, Ky., Oct. 13.—(AP.)—Ed A. Tipton, for many years president and general manager of the Kentucky Trotting Horse Breeders' Association, died at his home here today.

Tipton, who was 75 years old, had been in ill health for several months, having suffered a nervours breakdown. He at one time represented the late Marcus Daly, Montana copper magnate, when the latter was interested in trotters. Tipton bought fine trotters for Daly.

In addition to his widow, Tipton leaves a son, Edward D. Tipton, of Boston, and a daughter, Mrs. T. S. Kenyon, of Summit, N. J.

Braves Get Coast League Outfielder

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Oct. 13.—Sale of Wes Schulmerich, Los Angeles outfielder and former Oregon State football star, to the Boston Braves, was announced today. The Angels will receive $40,000 cash and Outfielder Jimmy Walsh in exchange for the slugging outfielder.

Tom Heeney

Tom Heeney, Australian veteran, who always will be remembered as the last man to face Gene Tunney in the ring, returns to Pittsburgh to meet Emmett Rocco, of Ellwood City, in the 10-round main bout. In his only other appearance in these parts, recently, Heeney turned 'em away, several thousands of 'em, for his battle with George Panka, of Homestead, in the Meyers Bowl, North Braddock. He grabbed himself off the decision that night and made himself many friends. Unless we misunderstand the species, all of these fans will be back tonight, toting their pals with them.

Emmett Rocco

Heeney arrived in town this morning, saying he felt as fit as a fiddle and r'arin' to go. He expects to win over Rocco, who has boxed many of the good ones, and then come back for another good purse for a return bout with Panka. If Rocco wins, he will be matched with Panka.

Rocco now makes his fighting headquarters in Youngstown. He has been under the management of Al Zill, promoter, of that place, since the death of Joe Cumo, the man who brought him out in the ring game.

PIRRONE VS. FLORIAN

McCaffrey startled the fans by knocking out Al Becker, of Sheraden, in two rounds in the inaugural show at the Garden last Monday night and will be welcomed back.

SHOW AT WASHINGTON

Two other shows are listed in the tri-state district tonight. They are at Washington, Pa., where Tiny Smith, English flyweight importation, makes his American debut against Johnny Edwards in the 10-round main bout, and at Wheeling, W. Va., where Midget Mike O'Dowd and Tony Leone appear in the windup of a show for the benefit of a hospital fund.

Hans Roberts, Brookline welterweight, boxes Paul Oger in the semi-final of the Washington show, which will be held in the Coliseum, and Georgie Peck meets Young Joe Walcott and Jimmy Malone tangles with Leo Zumpetti in the preliminaries. Charley Baxter boxes Eddie Ruckman, and Anastasio Vacquerio meets Ross Fields in the feature preliminaries of the Wheeling card.

Between Rounds

Mike Ray wants to match Eddie Brandon, his Negro lightweight, against Battling Gizzy, and Jackie Murray, his Negro welterweight, against Ted Yarosz.

Tom Maico, Soho welter, is in training and will be seen in action again shortly. He recently had to cancel a bout with Tiger Joe Dandall at Hickey Park.

Sparky Ewalt and John Ochs, heavyweights, will box the main bout of the outdoor amateur boxing show at the Twenty-seventh Ward A. C. tomorrow night. Other bouts listed include: Clarence Taylor vs. Frank Kladdick, Butch Jacobs vs. Mike Chonyak, George Julius vs. Young Zeno, Young Pace vs. Jack McGann and Johnny Birek vs. Young Beverly.

Close to 300 sanctions were given for amateur boxing shows in the Allegheny Mountain Association of the A. A. U. during the past year, according to John T. Taylor, secretary-treasurer.

Jackie Wilson, North Side middleweight, now boxing under the management of James (Red) Mason, will appear in the semi-final to the Buck McNerlan-Bucky Lawless bout at Motor Square Garden next Monday night. Billy Brent in the main bout at the Moose Temple Friday night of next week, provided Brent defeats Georgie Chambers there next Friday night. Cowboy DeLuca and Freddie Edwards box the other 10-round bout in the Moose ring next Friday and Jimmy Kelly meets Paul Oger in the second six-round bout.

The Allen Beatty-Freddie Fitzgerald bout at Franklin, Pa., postponed last Thursday night because of an injury suffered by Fitzgerald, will be put on at a later date.

Whitey Whitworth is the man behind Billy Brent, the Hill Negro middleweight, who has been flashing such good form recently. In addition to having matches for him at the Moose Temple this and next week, he will send Billy against Jackie Herman, at the new Etna club on October 31.

Johnny Demko will box Sammy Madison and Kid Lang is in with Tony Quinto in six-round preliminaries to the Young Rudy-Jimmy McGraw bout at Steubenville, O., Wednesday night. Sammy Paris and Harry Morris box the semi-final.

Promoter Jim McGirr, of McKeesport, will close today for the preliminaries for his weekly show Thursday night. The card will be topped by two 10-round bouts, in which Lloyd Clements, of Swissvale, will box Nick Polis, of Aliquippa, and Young Joe Walcott, of Washington, Pa., will go against Billy McArthur, of Saginaw, Mich. The Polis-Clements bout is a return engagement, Clements holding a win over Nick.

Soldier Dombroski, of Detroit, the blond southpaw socker, who meets Joey Thomas, of Chicago, in the 10-round main bout of the opening show at the Etna Elks Temple, Wednesday night, is one of the toughest featherweights in the Middle West and several attempts have been made in the past to introduce him here without results. Thomas is a clever boxer, who, in his most recent appearance here, upset the dope by beating Johnny Datto.

Dan Billick has been matched to box Mickey Paul, of Buffalo, in an eight-round bout, at Erie, next Friday night.

Jackie Herman, of Wheeling, has been substituted for Georgie Peck as Georgie Bretsch's opponent in the eight-round semi-final at the Etna Club Wednesday night. Peck was refused permission by the Boxing Commission to box at both Washington, Pa., tonight and at Etna on Wednesday.

FRISCH SPIKED IN EXHIBITION GAME

BALTIMORE, Oct. 13.—(AP.)—Frankie Frisch, captain and second baseman of the St. Louis Cardinals, National League baseball champions, suffered a bruised leg muscle in an exhibition game here yesterday that may end his present barnstorming tour.

Frisch, playing with an all-star aggregation against the Black Sox, of Baltimore, collided while running to first with the Black Sox right fielder, who had come in to attempt a double play. He was carried from the field and an examination made by a physician. The player's spikes tore the flesh of the Cardinal captain's leg. The score was 10 to 0 in favor of the Black Sox.

TECH MACHINE IS STRONG

Westminster, 7 to 6. Geneva set down Thiel, 13-6.

The way in which Tech steamrollered the Yellow Jackets probably caused the great Knute K. to spend a Sunday with his thinking cap on extra duty. Knute K. and his Notre Dame warriors, who sank the Navy Saturday, have the Scotch on their hands this week. Now ordinarily it is considered a break of rare luck to have some good Scotch on hand, but Mister Rockne very likely could name you half a dozen other orders he'd rather have to handle this week than Carnegie.

TECH STRONG

Georgia Tech entered Saturday's game on the very short end of the wagering and was conceded to be a couple touchdowns inferior to the Plaid. But 31 points is a lot of points, especially for one major team to pile up on another, and it simply goes to show that this Carnegie Tech team is about the class of the East, that it will take an inspired team to upset it, and that the inspired team, whichever it may be among Pitt, Notre Dame, Temple, Wash-Jeff and New York U., will know it has been in a ball game when it gets through.

Minus three varsity members, Pitt toyed with Western Reserve Saturday. The high spot of the game was served the 12,000 or so cash customers right off the bat when Capt. Eddie Baker joined the ranks of those greats who've returned kickoffs for touchdowns by sprinting 100 yards for a score. Then, to escort the ball over for the last marker, Buzz Brown raced 50 yards, half the distance ambled by his captain.

Jim MacMurdo, Ralph Daugherty and James (Babe in the Woods) Clark, end, center and fullback, were not invited to the party, and the ball club had to function without 'em.

The Dukes, taking Loyola Friday night by a 7-to-6 count for the second year in a row, evidenced the return to the form that carried them to an undefeated season a year ago, and appear to be back in that stride that enabled them to take down one-point triumphs with amazing regularity. It's not a habit with the Dukes, it's an inhibition. Grove City spent a busy evening in Cleveland, Friday, with Ralph Vince's heavy John Carroll club, finally smacking out a 6-0 triumph. Given a break or two, it might have been three times as bad.

FOOTBALL FUNDAMENTALS

By Howard Harpster

All-America Quarterback at Carnegie Tech, 1928. Now Head Coach at Geneva College.

Do You Know--

On many plays it is difficult for the lineman to get out in front of the ball carrier fast enough, but, by staying close to his line and running in a direct path, he moves out in the quickest possible way.

If the lineman circles back, he very often clutters up and jams the backfield and not only slows up the play but also spoils his own effectiveness.

The linemen should be very careful that they do not "point" or indicate that they are about to pull out of the line, for it is a dead give-away to the defense which way the play is going.

(Editor's Note—How much do you know about the fundamentals of football? Can you tell when a player at any given position is playing a good game and when he is at fault? In other words, do you know the proper and improper manner of playing the various positions? All players should know the simple fundamentals illustrated and detailed by Howard Harpster in the above series beginning today; it is intended more for the spectator. Clip and preserve the series and you will have a better appreciation of the fine points of football.)

OLYMPICS WIN; MAJESTICS TIE WEST VIEW

By TOM BIRKS.

Playing under a sweltering sun, the two big independent gridiron conference games yesterday were attended by capacity crowds. At West View the home team found itself outplayed by the powerful Majestic aggregation, but 0-0 was the final count. At Rainbow Gardens, the Olympic machine, guided by Red Iverson, flattened, out the Ambridge Mystics, 20 to 0.

Schachern tried twice for field goals and missed, and Jimmy Rooney tried a placement, but that also went wide. The nearest attempt West View came to scoring was when Mahler blocked Rooney's attempt at a placement. Whitey Dummer recovered and ran to the Majestic 30-yard line before he was tackled by Vaughn.

It was again a matter of two powerful lines clashing at West View, and while the Majestic aerial attack functioned perfectly, the Big Green gridders found themselves bucking against a stone wall when in the scoring zone.

ROONEY FINE KICKER

The game was featured by the fact that Jimmy Rooney has no peer in the conference when it comes to punting, the scion of the Rooney family giving a wonderful exhibition.

At McKeesport, it was a drab first quarter and then out of a clear blue sky Whitey Fyock started operations which proved curtains for the Mystics. Fyock went 55 yards through the entire Ambridge team for the first touchdown.

Zoltac, Klinzing and Barnes flashed plenty of stuff, while Sapp and McCurdy looked good on the line. Ambridge never got started, although Zaneski played good and Rhoades was great on defense.

In the West View battle, Harp Vaughn gave one of his finest exhibitions in many seasons. In picking up fumbles, intercepting forward passes, running the ball, and in playing safety Vaughn was brilliant.

FIELD GOALS MISSED

The Rooney-Guarino forward-passing combination worked to perfection. In the matter of downs, the Majestics had eight to West View's one in the second quarter. In the third the Majestics worked the ball to the West View six-yard mark, but the Muzzio line stiffened and took the ball on downs.

TITLE BOUT CALLED OFF

NEW YORK, Oct. 13.—(AP.)—Midget Wolgast, of Philadelphia, who is recognized in his own state and in New York as flyweight champion, has injured a hand in training and so the first title bout of the new indoor season has been called off.

Wolgast was scheduled to battle Frankie Genaro, of New York, who holds the title recognition of the N. B. A. over the 15-round route in Madison Square Garden Friday night. Madison Square Garden officials announced the date would be filled by the meeting between Justo Suarez, sensational Argentine lightweight, and Louis (Kid) Kaplan, of Meriden, Conn., former holder of the world's featherweight championship, originally scheduled for October 22.

MINORS DEMAND HIGHER PRICE FOR STARS

By CHARLES J. DOYLE.

Owner Barney Dreyfuss of the Pirates, is back home from Cleveland, after attending the major-minor league conference which had to do with the troublesome draft. The Three Class A circuits—the American Association, the International League and the Pacific Coast League—appear to form the principal bone of contention with regard to advancement of promising players to the "big show."

The magnates now are reported agreed on the universal draft but deadlocked on the purchase price involved. Apparently the minors are holding out for a fortune on each player to placate them for what they might get in the open market.

BUCS HAVE PROBLEMS

The Pittsburgh club at the present time, has more pressing problems. The managerial question for next year has not been disposed of and it will not be until Jewel Ens returns from Cuba, according to an official of the local team.

Ens is expected back about the last of the month. He will immediately get in touch with President Dreyfuss and something definite will be given out at that time.

The feeling throughout the league is to the effect that Ens made a fine showing, in view of the remarkable number of misfortunes which visited the Pirates. The long illness of L. Waner, Ervin Brame, Steve Swetonic and the month's absence of Capt. Traynor from the lineup were a combination of circumstances which would baffle the best in the game. The loss for more than two months of the younger Waner was almost enough to throw the team out of the flag race.

ATTEND GRID GAME

McCarthy May Sign Contract Tomorrow

NEW YORK, Oct. 13.—Joseph Vincent McCarthy, until recently manager, in name at least, of the Wrigley-owned Chicago Cubs, will be officially lured into affixing his signature to a contract in the offices of the New York Yankees tomorrow afternoon.

One of Col. Jacob Rupert's henchmen, Charles McManus, the Yanks' secretary, confided that "a conference will be held tomorrow between Col. Ruppert and McCarthy."

McCarthy has had surprising success in both the American Association, where he managed Louisville, and in the National League, where he piloted Wrigley's Cubs to the 1929 pennant.

His contract with the Yankees, it is believed, will run but one year, as Babe Ruth's contract expires next year and the Babe himself has hinted at either retiring or going into the managing business himself.

Sport Vignettes

What a football team that Carnegie Tech outfit is this year! . . . Youcan kick it around that Knute Rockne is losing a lot of sleep out at South Bend as he contemplates the battle with the Tartans next Saturday, to be followed by that with Pitt here a week later . . . The last time Tech invaded South Bend, in 1928, the Plaid won, 27-7, and last year, with a sub-normal team, it held the Irish to a 7-0 score at the Stadium, and Notre Dame went on to win the national title . . . Tech has beaten the Ramblers twice in six starts and scored 19 points in another meeting, and this year's crew appears to be the most powerful yet . . . That 31-0 score against Georgia Tech at the Stadium last Saturday just as easily could have been 50-0, the T

VARIETY OF PLAYS ESSENTIAL, WARNER SAYS

FOES' DEFENSES OFTEN CONFUSE GRID TEAMS

By GLENN S. (POP) WARNER,
Member All America Board of (illegible)

The public little realizes what a scientific game football has come to be. Every team has at least 25 plays in which every player on the team has a special assignment. If any of them misses his assignment the play very likely will fail. These assignments, on say 25 plays, would not be so hard to learn if every team used the same defensive formation, but there are several types of defense used rather commonly and a coach never knows which of these defensive formations his opponents are going to use. There is the seven man line and a diamond defensive formation of the backfield, called a seven-one-two-one defense. There is the seven man line and box defense of the backfield called a seven-two-two formation, and there is the six man line with three men of the backfield rather close up and two backs further back, called the six-three-two defense

Pop Warner

There is the six man line with two men close up, two backs further back and wide and a safety man further back, called the six-two-two-one defense. Sometimes teams have their ends play a smashing game and others play a waiting cautious game. Then there are three kinds of forward pass defense—the man to man defense most commonly used—the zone defense, and the modified man to man defense. Against all these different forms of defense the offensive players have different assignments, which means that on every one of those 25 plays which a team has, the players have to learn as many different ways of playing those plays as there are different types of defense which may be met.

12 DIFFERENT SYSTEMS

I once heard Coach Rockne, of Notre Dame, say that his teams had played against 12 different systems of defense to the Notre Dame shift. What does that mean? Well, it simply means that every play Rockne gives his team has to be played 12 different ways. Some players may have about the same assignments against nearly all of these different defensive formations but some of the players will have to play differently against each one of those 12 types of defense. That is not all. There are some players which will go well against one type of defense which will be ineffective against another type, and the field general has to be taught the plays to use against each type of defense. If ends are coming in fast and sharp the fake plays are likely to be spoiled because there is a certain amount of delay required in executing such plays. Therefore, against fast playing ends either provision has to be made to block them or fakes must be abandoned. If ends are charging in fast and sharply then wide plays go well, and lateral passes, while against the cautious style of end play such plays are not feasible.

The forward passes taught a team have to be based upon the type of forward pass defense the opposing team is using. Some passes will very likely succeed against a man to man defense, which will not work well against a zone defense, and many passes will succeed against a zone defense that will be easy to stop by a well-executed man to man defense. Therefore several types of passes have to be learned by every team and the field general has to know which of those passes are planned for the type of defense the opponents are using.

It easily can be seen then that this game of football is a much more scientific game than the casual observer realizes, and it also can be seen why it is that the plays and forward passes which the coach teaches his team can easily be made of no avail unless the field general knows his business and selects from those plays and passes the ones which are planned to be effective against the type of defense the opponents are using.

NOT BEST POLICY

Too many field generals call the plays thoughtlessly and think that because they have a large number of plays at their disposal they must use them all or as many as they can, little realizing that if two or three plays are getting the desired results those are all that are necessary to be used.

I once saw Yale defeat her greatest rival on just one play. Frank Hinkey, probably as brainy a football player as ever played the game, directed the Yale attack that day and when Yale secured the ball on about the opponents 40-yard line and near the side line he sent the Yale fullback crashing straight ahead into the opponent's line. The play gained and it was tried again. It gained the second and the third time, and as long as it was gaining, Yale continued to use the same play. A less heady player than Hinkey might have switched to some other play once in a while just as the opponents figured he would, but not so Hinkey—as long as that one play was gaining ground why use anything else? The ball was carried steadily down the field and over the opponent's goal line on that one play and that one touchdown won the game for Yale.

MY FIFTY YEARS IN BASEBALL

Manager, World Champion Philadelphia Athletics

INSTALLMENT NO. 31.

That unexpected defeat by the Cubs in the fourth game of the 1910 World Series didn't disconcert the Athletics, for they felt sure that the Cubs would not win three straight games, which they would have to do to deprive us of the championship which was in our grasp.

Connie Mack

The fifth game proved the final battle. Jack Coombs made his third start of the series and Frank Chance elected Mordecai Brown to keep the faint spark of life in the Cubs going.

It was a wonderful duel up to the eighth inning, with the Athletics leading 2 to 1. Then the Cubs collapsed before a fate that was inevitable. The Athletics pounded out five big runs in their next time at bat and the game ended 7 to 2.

The Athletics now were champions of the baseball universe. They had had two tries for the honor. They lost to McGraw's Giants in 1905, but five years later were to redeem themselves and give the American League its first World Series triumph since 1906.

While Chief Bender had pitched two excellent games, Coombs was the real hero, pitching three out of the five games and winning them all. Not in one of these games was it necessary to take him out.

PLANK FROZEN OUT

Coombs improved as the series progressed and on the final day he even eclipsed his efforts of the first two games. He still stands in the record books as being the only pitcher to win five times in World Series games without any defeats, while Chief Bender is tied with Waite Hoyt as the only pitcher to win six games in the classic.

It seemed odd to some of our friends that Plank, who had pitched so excellently for us through the pennant season, was not used in the World Series with the Cubs. I will answer that by saying that had there been another game to play Eddie would have been used. We got off so well with Bender and Coombs that I did not want to disturb this winning combination until it was absolutely necessary.

Moreover, Coombs was getting better all the time, and, in addition, he was as strong as an ox and delighted to work out of turn. That was why Plank did not pitch in the games.

CHAMPIONS FETED

The young Athletics' team, so belittled before the series, now returned in triumph to Philadelphia. We were greeted at Broad Street Station by thousands of howling fans, headed by Mayor John Reyburn, who himself was a real enthusiast, and attended nearly all of our home games. A committee in waiting hustled us in autos and we were carried off in glory to the Bellevue-Stratford Hotel, where a dinner was served. A short time later, the city of Philadelphia tendered us a big banquet at the same hotel and presented each player a watch.

The year of 1910 was studded with gems for me. I had counseled a ball team to a pennant and a world championship. I also captured a bride. On October 27, shortly after returning from Chicago, I married Katherine A. Hallahan, of Philadelphia. From that union there came five children, Mary, Cornelius, Jr., Ruth, Rita and Betty.

We decided to spend our honeymoon in Europe, and, on November 3, boarded a steamship for Naples, Italy, and did not return until February. In this time we visited all the principal countries. In Rome, Bishop Kennedy, formerly of Conshohocken, Pa., who was head of the American College in the Eternal City, made it possible for us to meet Pope Pius. These were weeks of ease and contentment that rested me completely after my trying experience in the long baseball campaign.

McINNIS BECOMES STAR

So I faced the 1911 season a new man and full of confidence. Only one change was made in my regular lineup that season. Stuffy McInnis, who had joined us in 1909, was developing so rapidly that I had to find a place for him.

While he was nominally a shortstop or second baseman, I decided to give him a trial at first base in place of Harry Davis. Stuffy was not of the first baseman type, for he was rather short in stature, but the way he mastered the intricacies of first base play so quickly was amazing. He also was a chronic .300 hitter, which in those days meant a lot.

McInnis so well fitted into the picture that our inner cordon was called "the $100,000 infield." Every one of the quartet was a star and young in years. That amount of money as appraisal value was a big compliment to their ability at the time, but today any one of the skill of that four would bring more than that sum.

That spring the Athletics, for some reason, didn't get a good start. At the same time we saw a familiar menace in the western half of the circuit. Detroit, which had nosed us out in 1907 and 1909, swept the league in the opening weeks by winning 20 out of its first 22 games. Everybody agreed that phenomenal spurt meant the death knell to our hopes for repeating. The situation certainly looked black for our chances.

TEAM REPEATS VICTORY

On June 1, the Tigers were ahead from 12 to 15 games. But from that time on the Athletics started to play real baseball. At the same time the early blinding pace began to tell on the Tigers and they started to lose. On we gained as Detroit lost.

It was on July 4 that we leaped into first place, being the only team other than Detroit to hold the lead since the season started. We tumbled out of first place the next day, when New York beat us while the Tigers were winning. Then we started West and arrived in Cleveland, one and one-half games behind Detroit. From Cleveland we went to Detroit and lost four in a row. Again we were dismayed.

The next jump was to St. Louis, and the Athletics started a winning streak that enabled them to finish the St. Louis and Chicago series without losing a single game.

In the meantime the Tigers started losing again and we actually came home in first place and never lost the lead again. We won the pennant by 12 or 15 games.

PITT'S EASY VICTORY over Western Reserve in Cleveland on Saturday was only in line with general expectations, but it was rather surprising to see Carnegie Tech roll up such a margin as 31 points against Georgia Tech.

Few of the experts had anticipated that the Plaid would win by more than two touchdowns, and one of the prominent Eastern coaches, Bill Roper, of Princeton, had gone so far as to predict that the Skibos would be defeated by the Golden Tornado.

Howard Eyth

TO SAY THAT Georgia Tech is as weak as the score would indicate would not be doing justice to the Southerners nor giving the Tartans the credit due them for their exceedingly decisive victory. It would be fairer to mark down the unexpectedly large score as having been due to the fact that Carnegie was stronger than anticipated. The Atlanta boys displayed a fine spirit, gave everything that was in them, fought their hardest from start to finish, and against ordinary opposition would have looked much better than they appear to be in the light of Saturday's figures. But against the tremendous strength of the Tartans they didn't have a chance. Look out for those Scots this season. They shaped up in advance as likely to flash a good team, but they're far better than anybody figured. They're a combination of power and speed that has unlimited possibilities, they have in Howard Eyth a running back who is certain to rank with the best in the country, a new star halfback in George Kavel, Harry McCurdy greatly improved, John Karcis in shape for a fine year, a second backfield of merit, a powerful line, splendid replacements and in general an outfit that may be headed for one of the highest peaks any Carnegie team ever reached.

TUBERS BEATEN BY HERMINIE

Playing a brilliant game on the offense, and flashing a good defense, the Herminie team of the Mon-Yough League, advanced in the West Penn senior cup play by defeating the National Tube eleven by a 6-goals-to-1 score at McKeesport yesterday afternoon.

Herminie flashed a few of the old Madison and Jeannette players in the lineup and started scoring in the second half. When the halfway mark arrived, Herminie had a one-goal lead, and that looked big at the time.

In the second half, Outside Right Prentice scored three goals in quick succession, and the Tubers were out of the tourney. Red Adams then scored twice, while Murphy scored the lone marker for the Tube City team. The lineup:

Primrose and Shannon Fintex tied, 1-all, in the other West Penn Cup battle.

League games saw Cecil beating Dunlevy, 3-1; Bridgeville topping Curry, 3-1; Manown tripping Gratztown, 2-0, and Victory Hill downing Clarksville, 3-1. Vestaburg blanked Elizabeth, 6-0; Horning lost to Heidelberg, Jrs., 3-0, and Bower Hill and Glendale played a scoreless tie.

YOUGHIOGHENY TICKET SET

By VERN SWARTSFAGER

With the local golf season practically ended, at least so far as tournaments are concerned, clubs will begin holding their annual meetings, making preparation for next year. The first of these confabs is slated Monday night of next week at the Youghiogheny Country Club, when officers will be elected and business discussed.

R. C. Painter has been nominated for the president's chair; John A. Caughey for vice-president, and Scott A. Boles for secretary-treasurer. Three-year terms on the governing board likely will fall to the lot of George Altmeyer, Robert F. Graham and S. M. Lynch and a two-year term for William T. Brownscombe.

Tomorrow the Wilkinsburg Rotary Club meets the Wilkinsburg Lions Club in a team match at the Edgewood Country Club. That will be a real contest.

G. S. Mch. Nyrum, well-known S. A. E. linksman, scored an 81 yesterday while playing with Dean Hill, Lou Kerr and M. F. Andrews at Edgewood. Hill, the investment financier, was a bit off his game, but scored well anyway, he said.

Don't forget the official opening of the South County Park Saturday morning. It'll be a real affair, and give all golfers in the county a chance to inspect their championship-constructed new public links.

Johnny Quill, groundskeeper at Highland, and secretary of the "crosskeepers' Association of America, scored an ace yesterday while playing with Sam Parks, Sr., Frank Nash and Larry Rogers. It came on the 115-yard third.

WHEN that question is put to you in that blunt fashion—you won't hesitate about your answer. You'll admit that the men who build your car know more about its mechanism and its lubrication than you do.

But do you buy oils and greases on that basis? Do you use the oil which has been specified by factory experts as the proper one for your car? Or do you buy a heavier oil than you should be using? Many people, thinking that the heavier an oil is the better it is, are regularly using oils too heavy for the proper lubrication of their cars. This results in a drag on the motor, causing decreased power and mileage.

The factory experts have designated the correct oil for your type of motor by an S. A. E. number.

Wherever Amoco Motor Oils are sold, the attendant has a chart showing just the proper grade for your car under summer or cold weather conditions. Consult the attendant the next time you stop for oil. He'll be glad to advise you as to the grade of oil for your car—recommended by the factory that built it.

And he'll have that grade of Amoco Motor Oil "right on tap" ready to serve you!

STOCKS POINT TO BUSINESS RECOVERY

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER.

NEW YORK, Oct. 13.—The latter phases of the decline in common stock prices should not be construed purely as an attempt to forecast short term business probabilities. They reflected to a large extent the decision of important financial interests to withhold buying orders until leading stocks were selling more than 15 times computed 1930 earnings, attained a lower-price earnings ratio. In the last setback, the yield on 90 leading stocks rose to 4.98 per cent, compared with 2.88 per cent a year ago.

M. S. Rukeyser

The recent deflating in stock prices, carrying down selected issues to lower price-earnings ratio than they have sold at in years, brings them to a level where the market will be more sensitive to efforts to discount a return of prosperity when financiers think they see portents of the recovery.

In spite of the disappointing early autumn, there seems no reason to reverse the opinion that business is at the bottom of the depression. The practical issue is how wide the valley will prove to be.

SIMILAR TO 1921

If the analogy with the setback of 1921 is relevant, recent improvement in the textile trades may prove more important than commonly realized. In 1921, the last depression of comparable importance, textiles recovered before the comeback in general business. Cotton consumption, wool consumption and silk consumption moved decisively upward in January, 1921, whereas general business did not show unmistakable signs of improvement until the following spring. Among other harbingers of nearby recovery in 1921 were gains in the boot and shoe industry in February, and in imports of crude materials in the sames months.

The bearing of this on the current situation is that the textile trades have been experiencing a recovery. Cotton consumption attained a low point in August, and since then the Association of Cotton and Textile Merchants of New York announced a gain of more than seasonal proportions. This straw in the wind is substantiated by a like development in the silk trade, which in June was 40 per cent below normal. By September, according to the report of the silk association, it was back to normal.

Likewise, reports from the shoe trade have been distinctly more encouraging. These developments, marking a comeback in the most depressed trades, raise the hope that, as in 1921, these trades are at the van of a general recuperation of business.

COMMODITIES CLUE

For the near term future, the commodity markets are likely to give a better clue as to what is coming in business than the stock market, which is complicated by technical considerations, especially the debate which is raging over the question of a proper average price-earnings ratio in times of recession. Of course, when and if business begins to turn unmistakably upward, the business trend will prove a dominant stock market motif.

FRANCE WEAKENS

France, prosperous while its neighbors were depressed, stood out for months as a contradiction to the assertion of modern economists that the great industrial nations prosper and wane more or less as a unit. France, being largely agricultural and distinctly self sufficient, is perhaps the last of the great nations to enter the phase of depression, but recent statistical reports from France indicate a gradual business recession. Car loadings are currently running 10 per cent less than a year ago. Steel and iron production have been sliding off since June, and industry reports shrinking margins of profit.

The lack of immunity of even France may help to heighten interest in the informal proposal of Dr. H. Schact, former president of the German Reichsbank, that businessmen and bankers of the United States, Great Britain, France, Belgium and Germany—the great industrial nations—undertake joint co-operative efforts for finding an outlet in the less developed countries of the surplus products of modern industry. In this matter the natural machinery to work through would be the International Chamber of Commerce at Paris, but thus far this body has been more concerned with passive gathering of statistics than with active planning of the work of the world.

Commodity prices, still at or near the bottom, were quiescent last week, with the exception of cocoa and coffee, which advanced as revolution spread in Brazil. Sugar advanced somewhat, too, in response to the Chadbourne program.

Markets, Banks Closed for Holiday

NEW YORK, Oct. 13.—Banks, stock exchanges and the principal commodity markets throughout the country are closed today in observance of Columbus Day, which is being celebrated today owing to the fact that October 12 fell on Sunday this year. Business will be resumed in all markets at the usual hours tomorrow.

Forbes

Wanted Today: One Million Columbuses

—By B. C. FORBES—

WANTED: One million Columbuses to discover:

That our labor is the most efficient in the world.

That we have supplemented our manpower by far more electric power than any other nation in the world.

B. C. Forbes

That we export more than any other country in the world.

THAT OUR NATIONAL wealth is three times that of any other people.

That we own 40 per cent of the world's total stock of gold.

That our savings deposits are larger than any other nation's.

That interest rates in our financial metropolis are today as favorable as in any capital of the world.

THAT OUR stock brokers' loans, inflated last year, have been reduced more than 50 per cent.

That wealthy investors would not dream of sacrificing their stock holdings at the low prices now ruling.

That somebody is buying every share of stock now being thrown on the market through necessity or unreasoning fear.

That buyers of good American stocks at times when depression caused quotations to tumble as they have tumbled during the last year, never yet failed to reap very generous profits.

THAT WHEAT, cotton, copper, rubber, flour, coffee, silk, lumber and other basic materials always have rebounded whenever in the past they reached price levels distinctly below cost of production.

That such commodities are certain to act in exactly the same way again.

THAT AN ASTONISHING number of America's colossal fortunes were founded during panicky times. During periods when nervousness supplanted nerve throughout the country.

That opportunities are again available today for utilizing money—and courage—very advantageously, with certainty that unusual rewards can by and by be reaped.

THAT OUR government is sound.

That industry is better fortified with capital than ever before.

That wages here are the highest in the world and higher than ever before reached in this country.

That the will to work was never keener.

That the DESIRE to consume is unabated.

That cheap money and cheap power cannot fail to stimulate the spirit of enterprise and thus stimulate employment.

Finally, that America is not going to perish, not going to sink into the sea, but that we are bound to regain our senses and to rise to heights never before approached.

LET ONE MILLION of America's men of means, men of brains, men of power, men of influence cast out fear and act with faith and confidence in America's future—and another discovery would be made, namely: that we have latterly been frightened by ghosts.

Let each of us stand up and manfully lick our problems. Columbus showed us how to overcome difficulties in the face of infinitely greater odds than are against America of today.

Shall we wilt or win?

OHIO FURNACES TO RESUME

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Oct. 13.—The Mahoning Valley iron and steel industry continues operations for the week at an average rate slightly in excess of 50 per cent, and little changed from the preceding week. At least two district blast furnaces now out for repairs will be blown in early in November—the stacks operated by the Sharon Steel Hoop Company at Lowellville, and the Cliffs Corporation furnace at Warren.

Both are being relined and improved. Of the 34 stacks in the valley, 10 are melting. Steel ingot capacity is active at 55 per cent, with 26 of 51 independent open hearths melting. Much of the pipe being made at present by the electric welding method is manufactured from open hearth steel, whereas under the old-type processes, Bessemer steel was more commonly employed. This accounts for maintenance of open hearth production, though Bessemer plants have been active on a parity.

The Youngstown sheet and tube Company and the Carnegie Steel Company continue at 50 per cent, with the Republic Steel Corporation reporting 65 per cent schedules. Improvement in the automobile requirements for miscellaneous steel materials is expected this month, though only in a moderate way.

STEEL'S YIELD NOW 4½%

NEW YORK, Oct. 13.—Typical of a group of sound industrial securities which offer promise for the long-term is U. S. Steel. At 148, it yields 4½ per cent on its dividend and about 10 per cent on its average earnings after all charges for the past four years.

Another instance is General Motors, which, under 40, yields around 8 per cent on its dividend and about 14 per cent on earnings.

Still another is Standard Oil of New Jersey, around 56, yielding 3½ per cent on its dividend and 6½ per cent on earnings.

The Steel Corporation during the past four years had average annual earnings, equal to nearly $15 a share on the present common. General Motors for the same period earned a total of more than $21 a share on the common, or over half the current selling price for the shares. Standard Oil of New Jersey earned around $15 in four years or an average of $3.80 a share.

The business will continue to operate under the same name as heretofore, but the liquidation of American Glue Company assets will be conducted by the Eastern Equities Corporation. Stockholders having voted to adopt such name for the purpose.

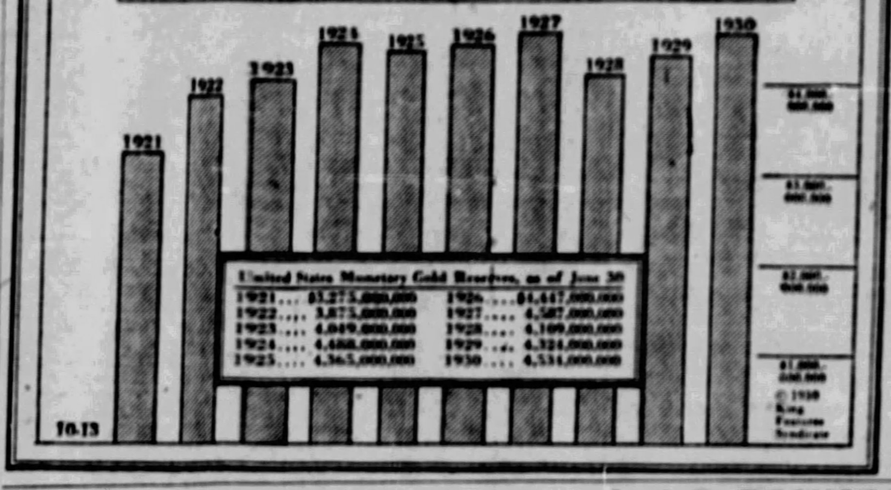
Gold Reserves Show Bank Credit Foundation Strongest Since 1927

The monetary gold stock of the United States—the amount of gold coin in possession of the Treasury Department, the Federal Reserve and all State and National banks and the estimated amount hoarded by individuals—on June 30, 1930 is compared with the corresponding figures for the past nine years.

Source: U. S. Department of the Treasury.

Gold is the foundation of our financial structure. Its supply indicates the soundness and stability of our banks, and determines the degree to which they may issue bank credit in the form of loans and investments which, in turn, expand purchasing power. Excepting 1927, the gold reserves of the United States on June 30, 1930 were larger than at any other corresponding time. This means that the foundation of our credit structure is in a strong and satisfactory condition.



Bankers' Meeting Centers Interest on Fixed Trusts

By GEORGE H. SNYDER.

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 13.—Prospects for the further development of fixed investment trusts held the chief attention of delegates of the Investment Bankers' Association of America as they gathered here yesterday for the organization's nineteenth annual convention.

The problems resulting from the rapid rise in popularity of this new type of investment will be given formal consideration when Charles D. Dickey, chairman of the investment companies' committee, makes his report during the course of today's general session.

In the meantime, fixed trusts have been the principal topic of conversation when groups in the lobby of the Roosevelt Hotel have gathered where the convention makes its headquarters.

A year ago when the makers of the investment securities met at Quebec this subject was barely considered. But with the vital changes which have taken place in the world of finance since that time, the fixed trusts have been skyrocketed into popularity.

Many More Developed

Phenomenal success in the distribution of the units of the pioneer trusts has led to the development of many additional fixed investment propositions. With these new offerings far-reaching refinements have been undertaken.

Investment bankers are generally agreed that the trend in the new offerings of fixed trusts has been decidedly favorable. While the provisions of the original issues were quite satisfactory except for minor details, the more recent offerings have been distinguished by terms which are increasingly favorable from the standpoint of investors.

Among the refinements have been safeguards against the distribution of capital in the form of dividends, reduced overhead costs and improved facilities for the elimination from port folios of securities whose desirability is affected by changing business conditions.

Yesterday's activities at the convention were limited to meetings of the board of governors and of the individual committees.

Atendance Cut

Due to the uncertain action of security markets during the past week the registration of delegates was limited to 600. This was smaller than was expected.

Trowbridge Callaway, president of the association, in commenting on the work of the convention following yesterday's meeting of the board of governors, said:

"While the convention is smaller than usual, it has a fully adequate representation from all of the association's different groups in the United States. In common with other lines of business, we have been going through a trying experience, nevertheless only a few of our working force is absent. Some of our committees, which are really small research organizations that investigate different problems of finance, report a larger attendance of committee members than at previous conventions.

Optimistic Tone

"The organized investment bankers of the country are working with a very definite conviction that better times are close ahead. I find these men from all parts of the nation very calmly optimistic, undisturbed by the vague fears that have been so prevalent.

"The conventions of this association have always consisted of a series of hard working meetings, including the deliberations of the board of governors and the various research committees. There has been no hesitancy in getting down to hard work. There is a very evident confidence that is most encouraging and when the convention formally assembles Monday I feel that its sessions will be among the most productive in the association's history."

Holding Company Acquires Utility

NEW YORK, Oct. 13.—Acquisition of the principal water properties of Southern Union Gas Company by Trans-Mississippi Utilities Corporation, a holding company which controls Texas Consumers Water Company, and purchase of a substantial stock interest in Trans-Mississippi by Southern Union, was announced by T. F. Murchison, president of Southern Union Gas Company. The properties include a group of water companies in Texas, Oklahoma and New Mexico, including those serving Kingfisher, Okla.; Quanan, Tex., and Gallup, N. M. They will be grouped into a new operating subsidiary of Trans-Mississippi, to be known as Southwest Water Company.

A. & P. REDUCES BREAD PRICE

The Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Company has reduced the price of the standard 24-ounce loaf of bread marketed through its stores to eight cents. The previous price of the loaf, which carries the trade name, "Dairy Maid Bread," was nine cents.

This is the first major adjustment of retail price to result from the steady decline in grain quotations over the past several months. Quoted values of the major cereals, including wheat, are at the lowest levels for 20 years or more. The A. & P., in announcing the new bread price, states that the move is made "in fairness to the public—giving the consumer the benefit of the lower prices of raw materials." The company adds that "there is no better way of getting rid of America's wheat surplus than by encouraging the people to eat it up."

RALLY REVIVES WALL STREET COURAGE

Sentiment Is Improved Despite Saturday Dip; Firmer Money Good Sign

NEW YORK, Oct. 13.—After coasting downhill for a month the stock market had its long expected selling climax this week, resulting in a general housecleaning of weakly held stock, and considerable reckless dumping of holdings by investors.

Not until the standard statistians weekly price index of 404 stocks had touched the lowest level in three years did the market rebound decisively, and bears rush to cover, shattering what Hull, in his exhaustive study, "Industrial Depressions," published 19 years ago, called "Cyclic Delusion No. 2," namely "prices will never rise again."

FOLLOWING PRECEDENT

Veteran Wall street observers said that the market was merely following the pattern of previous periods of depression, going to extreme depths as stocks are dumped overboard by holders who have lost their sense of value, as marginal accounts are weakened and jettisoned, and bears make use of the general confusion to reap profits.

President Whitney of the Stock Exchange helped to still considerable agitation which arose over short selling. In an address in Chicago, he pointed out that reports of bear raiding are usually exaggerated in times of depression, and that bears can influence the market as a whole only when holders of stocks lose their heads. He explained that short selling provides the impelling force of recovery.

CLIMAX ON FRIDAY

The selling climax, coming on Friday, was aggravated by failure of a large commission house the previous day, although attorneys stated that creditors would probably be paid in full. It gave the market a 6,000,000-share day, the third largest of the year. This climax carried stocks up so swiftly, as shorts suddenly found themselves pinched, that a substantial secondary reaction developed Saturday, although it left prices above the bottom levels which represented the turning point.

A combination of factors, such as a slackening of steel mill operations, political unsettlement abroad, and fresh declines in the leading commodity markets, aggravated the selling movement in stocks. The money market was firmer, although call loans did not rise above two per cent. A firming of money at this time is regarded as a good sign, showing that expanding business and trade is taking up the surplus of credit.

Average Crude Oil Price Unchanged

The average price of crude petroleum in 10 producing fields was unchanged last week from the previous week at $1.49 a barrel, Oil, Paint and Drug Reporter says. The average price for the corresponding period last year was $1.652 a barrel. Gasoline at refineries was lower at 6.52 cents a gallon at four principal refineries, compared with 6.78 cents a gallon the previous week.

Peseta Declines To New Low Level

MADRID, Oct. 13.—The peseta slumped to new low figures this morning, dropping to 10.12 to the dollar and 42.40 to the pound sterling. Most of the actual transactions were at better figures, however. The new low caused further depressions in the business world and disappointment in official circles, where improvement had been hoped for.

DAILY TRUE STORY

Her Late Husband

John Parker was, according to his own estimate of himself, "Not so dumb."

And while he was making estimates of himself, he also made an estimate of his business partner, Ned Allen. Concerning Ned, Parker said:

"Oh, Ned's all right, he's just bright enough to be a good steady worker, but not bright enough to grab off an income without work."

What this has to do with Mrs. Warren's late husband needs considerable explaining.

In the first place both John Parker and Ned Allen were chemists. They were graduated from the same institution, and both of them seemed quite promising in their line.

John Parker, however, got through more by good luck and having access to all of his friend Ned's notes than by any special brilliancy.

Parker was bright enough to see that Ned Allen would go far as a chemist. He also had a well-founded hunch that he wouldn't go far when it came to steady research and patient study that would lead to profitable results.

Parker had some money. So did Allen.

"Suppose we form a partnership," Parker had said to Allen. "Neither of us has enough to start out alone. Together we can lease a building and start in."

Ned Investigates

It looked good to Ned Allen. And so the "Alpa Chemical Company" came into being—the "al" from Allen and the "pa" from Parker.

Parker was too clever to start loafing as soon as their little company was formed. He was a young man who liked to plan far ahead. This very company he had planned before they were graduated, just as he had planned gradually to work things around so he would have a life of ease, profiting on the brains of Allen.

Parker knew he couldn't go ahead. But he pretended. He had his own little laboratory where he puttered around some, but smoked and read mostly, or slipped out the rear way and put in the day at golf.

Gradually it began to dawn on Ned Allen that everything that brought them their good income was the result of his invention, or his discovery through experiment.

Ned made some quiet investigations when Parker was away. He made some discoveries that were not exactly chemical, such as Parker's store of novels and magazines in a closet, his box of cigars, his bottle of Scotch, and some heavy cushions used in a comfortable folding chair.

"Not a chance, Ned—couldn't get along without you, we'll prosper better together," Parker had said.

Attractive Woman

"Then if you don't want to buy my half of this concern, Jack, suppose you sell me your share?"

"It all works just the same—we'd get along better together, Ned."

"I'm aware of that," Ned said, drily.

Myra Edwards noticed the situation, after a while.

Ned was engaged to Myra. In a few years, when he was on solid financial footing, they were to be married.

"Just what does Mr. Parker do?" Myra had asked him.

"Putters around, mostly, I'm afraid. You are too easy with him, Ned."

It was right after this that the charming little Mrs. Viola Warren arrived and, aside from her frequent remarks about her late husband, she was not so very talkative about her past.

Ned met her at the Trucknors' week-end party and she was decidedly attentive to him. Parker came somewhat later and promptly rushed over to talk to Ned, to get an introduction.

He got it. Mrs. Warren didn't pay much attention to him, but Parker beamed when he heard her mention her late husband.

"I'm going to ask you to drive Mrs. Warren home tomorrow, Jack, as I have to beat it tonight—with Myra, we have another engagement, family affair that cannot be slighted," Ned said.

"Many thanks," Parker exclaimed.

By this time he felt he had the upper hand with Ned as to their partnership arrangement, and he openly began to loaf and to be away from the little plant two-thirds of the time.

A little later "they" began to gossip a great deal. Mrs. Warren and Parker had been seen at Atlantic City, snuggled up in a wheel chair, being trundled along the boardwalk.

"I expect you'll be middle-aisling it soon, as Little Bo Peep puts it," Ned said to Parker upon his return from one of these trips.

"No?"

"Don't worry about the little widow roping me into matrimony—she told me herself she didn't think she would marry again—not for a very, very long while, at least."

Things went on about the same as usual. Now and then Parker would take another couple and they'd go up the lake to the Silver Beach colony for the week-end—"they" always including Mrs. Warren.

Parker Frightened

And one Monday morning, bright and early, Parker came up to Ned's bachelor quarters before Ned was out of his bath.

He appeared to be very much distressed.

"What's happened—no drowning at the lake, I hope? Nothing has happened to Mrs Warren?"

"Drowning? I wouldn't mind if she had—it wouldn't have been so bad," Parker declared.

"Husband?"

Ned didn't seem much disturbed and he laughed.

"It's no laughing matter—I thought she was a widow, she was always talking of her late husband—he—well, he's after me, all right—and he totes a gun."

"Now—listen, Ned, how much cash you got?"

Ned named a small sum, probably one-tenth of what he had. Parker groaned.

"I'm broke worse than that—I'll sell my share of the business for the sum you named."

The sale was made that forenoon.

"How come you always called Mrs. Warren a widow?" Ned asked.

"It isn't funny," Parker growled.

But it was funny, because Viola Warren wasn't either a widow or a married lady, she was quite single. The "husband" was her brother, hired for the occasion.

Myra and Ned put up the job on Parker, even to scheming to have this bright little actress, Viola Warren, talk a great deal about her "late husband."

LIKE ALL MOTHERS MRS. BUNGLE IS AMBITIOUS TO SEE HER DAUGHTER MARRY SOMEONE WORTH-WHILE, AND SHE WAS WELL SATISFIED WITH THE CHANCE MEETING LAST SUMMER AT COMBER BEACH WHEN MONTGOMERY EL DORADO FELL IN LOVE AT FIRST SIGHT.
OH, I BEG YOUR PARDON, SIR, FOR SPEAKING TO YOU. I THOUGHT— YOU LOOK SO MUCH LIKE A FRIEND NAMED HARTFORD OAKDALE.
OAKDALE! MY NAME IS MONTGOMERY EL DORADO. RATHER WARM ISN'T IT, MISS— I DIDN'T CATCH YOUR NAME?

I CAN'T SEE IT. THIS MR. EL DORADO IS A GENTLEMAN. OAKDALE IS NOTHING.
BUT MOTHER HE DOES LOOK SO MUCH LIKE HARTFORD OAKDALE.
LOVE AND JEALOUSY INSPIRED MONTGOMERY TO SEE MORE THAN FRIENDSHIP IN PEGGY'S INTEREST IN HARTFORD OAKDALE, I WHO, A SHORT TIME AFTERWARD, ACCEPTED AN OFFER AS MYSTERIOUS AS IT WAS EXTRAVAGANT TO GO TO SOUTH AMERICA.
$100,000! HALF IN ADVANCE. WHAT LUCK. IT LOOKS PECULIAR, I'LL ADMIT, BUT WHOEVER IS PAYING OUT THAT KIND OF MONEY MUST KNOW WHAT THEY'RE DOING. WHY SHOULD I WORRY ABOUT IT?
AND THEN AFTER AN IMPATIENTLY SHORT COURTSHIP, MONTGOMERY ASKED PEGGY TO BECOME MRS. EL DORADO.
I JUST DON'T KNOW WHAT TO SAY. I'M SO—OH SO UNCERTAIN.
UNCERTAIN? MY STARS, A NICE MAN. POLITE, WEALTHY, SOCIAL POSITION, FROM A FINE ARISTOCRATIC FAMILY, MADLY IN LOVE WITH YOU. AND YOUR ANSWER TO AN OPPORTUNITY THAT COMES ONCE IN TWO OR THREE LIFETIMES IS TO SAY YOU'RE 'UNCERTAIN.' HEAVENLY DAYS.

SUCCESS NO. 38916

When miniature golf first became popular six months ago, Bolivar X. Bolivar was penniless, cueless and restless. He immediately set to work on how to further perfect effortless golf, and devised a new miniature game that is carrying the country by storm. The player merely sits in his automobile while the attendant brings him a tube with funnel attachment. The player drops a marble in the funnel and makes eighteen holes in one try.

Q. AND A. DEPARTMENT

Dear Sympathetic Aunt Bella—

Will you kindly advise me, dear sympathetic Aunt Bella, if it is correct, when taking one or two ladies to luncheon, for the hostess to place the orders, or for each lady to give her individual order to the waiter?

—Fretful.

Ans.—I don't know, lady, what kind of heels you're intending to feed. I know I met a couple of hens at a social function at the local auto park and made the mistake of inviting them to lunch at a cafeteria. One old witch ate three dishes of ice cream. Do the ordering yourself, baby.

Rail-River Terminals Definitely Recommended

The new report of Director Edward G. Lang, of the Public Works Department, on the rail-river terminal projects differs in its tenor from the preceding reports. The others were merely colorless statements of fact, in which no attempt was made to influence Council one way or the other. In the latest report Director Lang definitely recommends that the city embark on the enterprise. In this recommendation citizens generally and business men in particular probably will join the director.

In the interest of lower freight rates Pittsburgh has been clamoring for half a century for the improvement of the Ohio River, to provide all-year navigation and link the city with the waterway system of the Mississippi basin. The improvement has been completed and the nine-foot stage proved drought-proof. The steel and coal companies are using the rivers extensively. Most of them have their own terminals.

Merchants and the public generally are not in position to take advantage of the lower freight rates offered by water transportation, because there is no terminal here at which miscellaneous merchandise can be handled satisfactorily. There is no prospect that such a terminal, on the scale demanded, will be constructed with private capital as a commercial enterprise; so it devolves on the city to build it as a public convenience.

Two river-rail terminals are recommended, one on the North Side for general merchandise and package freight, the other at Hays for bulky material. While both are needed for complete service, the North Side terminal would be most immediately useful, and Director Lang makes no mistake in advising that it be developed first.

The chances are that the city will not receive a large financial return—at least not for a few years—from its investment in river-rail terminals, but that should not be allowed to deter the Council from going ahead. Having put its hand to the plow, the city should complete the furrow.

Allegheny County Now Seems Safe for Pinchot

Allegheny County seems safe for Gifford Pinchot, Republican nominee for governor. There is no apparent reason to doubt the sincerity of the declaration of loyalty to Pinchot that were made by County Chairman Joseph G. Armstrong, Mayor Charles H. Kline and other leaders of the local Republican organization at the meeting in the Hotel Henry Friday night.

Supporters of John M. Hemphill, the Democratic and Liberal candidate, with whom the wish is probably father to the thought, will tell you that while, for appearances' sake, the ward leaders who supported Francis Shunk Brown, Pinchot's principal opponent in the primary, are professing regularity, they intend to knife the nominee in the election.

Political reporters and others who have a pretty good insight into what is going on behind the scenes, and who are often the recipients of confidences, say they can find no evidence of anything of the sort is contemplated. Perhaps the best indication that the suspicion is unfounded is that those astute, practical politicians, Senator James J. Coyne, James F. Malone and County Commissioner C. C. McGovern, whose loyalty to Pinchot is unquestioned, since they supported him in the primary, have found no threat of cheating. Their personal organizations extend into all parts of the city and county, and they are in good position to get the facts.

One reason, entirely apart from the loyalty question, why the local Republican organization is not conducting as spirited a campaign as in former gubernatorial elections, is because the money spenders this year are on the other side. The public utilities and coal interests who have been accustomed to contribute heavily to the Republican campaign chest are backing Hemphill.

They are backing him, of course, because of Pinchot's opposition to the coal and iron police and his demand that the public utilities give good service at fair rates.

Eucharist Day Service Is Beneficial to City

Pittsburgh is a better city today because of the impressive Eucharist Day service in Forbes Field last evening. It is a better city, not for Catholics only, not for Christians only, not only for those who believe in God, but for everybody, religious or irreligious.

The city would be a better place in which to live if the exercises had done nothing more than to strengthen the faith of the multitude in the teachings of the Son of Man whose sacrifice they had gathered to venerate. But the service had additional value. There was something very solemn and inspiring in the pledge those hundred thousand candle-bearers took:

"I pledge myself against perjury and blasphemy, profanity and obscene speech . . . I pledge my loyalty to the flag of my country."

The influence of that pledge, taken so dramatically, amid such awe-inspiring surroundings, will affect the whole life of the city. The cleanliness of speech, of which it is an earnest, will make for cleanliness of thought, cleanliness of action.

Virtue, truth and beauty are the gainers for this sublime expression of faith and pledge of respect for the Holy Name.

Is She Scotch?

Yes, and 1,000 Per Cent Bonny.

THIS KIND OF GIRL THE WORLD NEEDS.

This lady would not bore you. She wouldn't talk jazz language, certainly wouldn't blow cigaret smoke at you through her nose.

If only there were a few millions more like her, all married, with plenty of children, what a wonderful thing for the world that would be.

The name of the lady is Miss Evelyn Coats, a first-class "sportswoman" and athlete, in addition to being a young person that can be looked at most easily.

Here you see no legs like matches, no hips like an orange peel, no hollow chest. She is SOLID and you are not surprised to learn that among other achievements, this young glory of the Scottish race has recently won seven point-to-point races.

Scotland has many girls as charming and as promising as this one. Some of them that have not won seven point-to-point races have nursed seven good babies, contributed to the race that developed such men as Scott, Burns, Hume, and the greatest line of natural-born fighting chieftains that our earth has ever seen.

Young American girls that want to be worth while should try to be like this young person, not like the sketchy silhouette of something that the cat dragged in from the page of a comic paper.

"Bugs" Baer Says:

Rah, Rah, Rahcoon!

We know that summer is over when the bear retires to his hollow tree to wait for a more favorable market.

We know that the melancholy days are here when the football player seeks his level in the huddle and the collegian prowls the campus in his raccooned glory.

There will be no more financial panics in this nation. We have nothing left to panic with.

We need our money to send our boys through college. The first five hundred dollars on education will be spent for a raccoon kimona. Send your boy to college and the tailors will educate him.

When the lad puts on his raccoon tent he is in for the winter and emerges not until the warming sun of spring reddens the hot dog in the lunch wagon. He emerges slightly during December and January to snap at a bit of toast but pulls in his head whenever a book gets too close.

A boy at college must dress like the other students or be ne plus ulterior. That's why we see 80,000 raccoon coats at the Yale-Harvard game in November and wonder if they are human habitations or just haunted haberdashery.

There isn't much streamline contour about the raccoon blanket. It just starts at the ears and stops at the feet. The overflow meetings at the sides are sleeves and the bulge inside is the collegian. And possibly, three or four friends.

You can wear anything you want under them because you are perfectly insulated against the weather and inquisitive neighbors.

Owing to the size of the buttons on the coat it is essential to nail weather stripping in the button holes. But once, a student is firmly entrenched inside his raccoon he is as safe as the sultan in his guarded embroglio.

The result of this stylish demand for fur is that the raccoon has entirely disappeared from the haunts of man and is now found only in the lunch wagon, cheering section and on the campus.

After seeing a picture of your boy in a raccoon masquerade you wonder what he looks like. He gets so used to living like a native of the woods that he cannot eat unless somebody throws him a fish.

The raccoon habit has lasted five years now and will doubtless change to a newer and better fashion ere long. Probably next season your boy will be wearing a coat that makes him look like an Indian chief in a collapsed tepee.

A FAMOUS NUMBER

By Archibald Henderson

Perhaps the most famous number in history is not 3 or 7, the sacred numbers, or 360, the number of degrees in a circumference, but the number known by the Greep letter p, called pi. It represents the ratio of the circumference of a circle to its diameter. If the diameter of the circle were unity or one, then this strange number would represent the circumference of the circle. It was long known in this way, and it so appears, for example, in Oughtred's "Claris Mathematicae (edition of 1647). But from the time of William Jones, who gave it its present meaning in 1707, pi has been taken to mean the ratio of the circumference of a circle to its diameter. The Greek letter pi has come into popular use for this ratio since its adoption by Euler in 1737.

The value of pi is given, erroneously, in the Bible, more than once. In Chronicles iv., 2, we read: "Also he made a molten sea of 10 cubits from brim to brim, round in compass, and five cubits the height thereof; and a line of 30 cubits did compass it round about." This is a description of the priests' bathing pool in Solomon's Temple. Evidently, the Jews used the number 3 as the ratio of the circumference of a circle to its diameter. This value is approximately 5 per cent short of the actual value.

There have been many approximations to the value of this ratio. In the famous Rhind Papyrus of the Egyptians (of estimated date 1700 B. C.) the value of the ratio is given as 256 divided by 81, which is only about one-third of 1 per cent in excess of the true value.

The three classic problems of antiquity were: the doubling of a cube, the tri-section of an angle, and the squaring of a circle. The last is substantially equivalent to the determination of pi, for the area of a circle of unit radius is equal to pi square units, and if the number pi could be expressed rationally the whole question would be reduced to the construction of a square of a given area. If the Egyptian value, given alone, were exactly correct, then the area of the circle would be the same as that of a square erected on eight-ninths of its diameter.

Every student of geometry knows that an approximate value of pi is found in the text books by finding the value of the perimeters of regular polygons circumscribed about, and inscribed in, a circle. In this way, for example, Archimedes showed that pi lies between 3 1-7 and 3 10-71.

Certain values are worthy of record. Ptolemy (A. D. 150) found an almost exact value, correct to four decimal places. The following values have been computed by scientists, the value correct to the number of decimal places following their names: Van Ceulen (1540-1610), 35; Vega, (1756-1802), 140; Dase (died 1861), 200; Richter (died 1854), 500; and lastly, Shanks (about 1853), 707.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

Are men becoming Leaners?

Are they losing their old pride in being "Head of the house," their ambition to get ahead, their shame of loafing?

Are they more and more willing to let the Little Woman carry the load?

I'm hearing that they are—and it is.

I'm hearing this in increasing piles of mail from indignant wives whose husbands are lying down on the job. The plot runs like this—"He wasn't earning enough for us to get married on so I told him I'd work until we got a good start. Well, everything went fine for the first few months. Then he lost that job. He felt terribly about it. He said it made him just sick to think of me supporting the both of us. He was about crazy until he got another position, but that only lasted seven months. This time he didn't seem so worried. He took his time looking for another one. It was two months before he found it. Well, to make a long story short, it has been getting worse and worse.

"This last spell, he's been out of work for three months and he doesn't seem to worry at all."

So the story goes — ambition fading, self respect crumbling.

Why should he be ashamed to be out of work with his wife working when he knows a dozen other fellows in the same boat?

Four young wives, living in the same apartment house, write that their husbands assemble daily for poker while the girls wrangle for the wherewithal.

Another disgusted matron says —"Since Harvey started picking up around the house and getting dinner started for me, he doesn't seem to want to go back an do a regular man's work at all. Honest, Elsie, I expect to come home and find him doing fancy work!"

Yes, a letter like that's a riot. Two or three letters like that are still funny. But when they come in by the hundreds, they cease being comic.

What's the answer?

Is it the wife's fault?

But how are they going to marry, or get along afterwards, if she doesn't work?

What sort of a woman would she be if she didn't try to help her husband?

But what's going to happen if he continues to take that help—if he begins to look for it?

How long can a woman respect a man who no longer respects himself? And what's going to happen to a nation whose women are gradually assuming the industrial lead?

Hundreds of phone girls, stenogs, waitresses, beauty parlor operators, are setting up miniature matriarchies of their own.

And where do we go from THERE?

You tell.

Worst Story I Have Heard Today

By WILL ROGERS.

There was some folks that struck oil out in Kansas, and they were awful nice folks, but they wasn't all up on the social customs. So one of the family got to reading about the different kinds of parties they was having in Chicago, and one of the parties was a coming out party. So this here family sent around invitations to all their friends to come to a coming out party for their son, John, that was about 30 years old. Some of the invitations was printed, and others, to their closets friends, was just by word of mouth.

"Are you coming to John's coming out party?" says the proud mamma to her neighbor that had struck oil, too.

"Why, yes, I reckon we will," she says. "But what was he in for, anyway?"

Joy

I only saw a flash of blue,
I only heard a silver tone,
And the bird was gone before I knew.

Before I knew he was perched up high
On a branch of the rose in the arbor here,
He had soared far off into the sky,
The bird I sought that had been so near!

And the bird of joy in the tree of life
On lifted pinions soars and sings
Away from weariness and strife.

How many an hour, how many a day
The bird has fluttered, singing, near,
And even when it soars away
It leaves joy's golden echoes here!

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Oct. 13.—Diary of a modern Pepys: In a high pet over a tradesman confirming every order over the telephone with "O. K." And I'll join a league for the suppression of that phrase, if there are no dues. And John F. Neylun dropped by with Lee Olwell as did Joe Toplitzky.

An army of squatters are encamping on the fringes of New York preparing for the rigors of winter. While there are many such communities along Pelham Parkway and far reaches of Long Island, the biggest squatter village sprawls topsy-turvily near Surf avenue at Coney Island.

Here are more than 300 shacks of tin cans, driftwood and salvaged boxes. Entire families live in this turgid tranquility without paying rent. They have their own laws and in instances appoint mayors to settle disputes. In time they become incredibly filthy.

And like Kasper Hauser, in his dungeon, will live nowhere else. Squatter's land is usually property purchased for speculation and is held in hope of realty booms. As a rule, there is nothing that can be harmed and the owners offer no objections to invaders until a boom comes.

Harlem, 35 years ago, was cluttered with squatters—"MacFadden Flats" with rusted tin can chimneys and moldy straw roofs. Coogan's Bluff, overlooking the Polo Grounds, once bristled with squatters and their goats. Many descendants of Coogan's Bluff squatters are now camped at Coney and have never paid rent in their shiftless lives.

Astute land developers do not object to squatters. They are omens of good fortune and in instances inspired interest in abandoned acres. Even the architectural squalor to the practiscd eye shows possibilities of development. Many opulent villages around New York were once dump heaps of tin can shanties.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

Do you like to feel that you are superior to those with whom you are employed?

Do you make an effort to create and maintain this idea?

Not only so far as family connections are concerned, but also from an ability standpoint, do you feel your work-a-day associates are not your equal?

If you have had the benefit of unusual good environment and opportunities to become educated you should be filling a responsible position.

That does not mean that you should feel too good to take a menial position if necessary.

It does mean that you should seek employment according to your education.

It means also that there is no occasion for snobbish feeling if you have to have money and feel obliged to take what comes and try to carry off at the same time the idea that you are better than your job.

It only emphasizes the fact that you are not a real thoroughbred if you get snobby while you are earning your own living, or trying to do so.
